KILLER RE-ENACTS CRIMES

Heirens Admits Butchering Tot, 'Lipstick' and Strangle Slayings

CHICAGO, Aug. 6—(UP)—William Heirens, 17, coolly confessed to three shocking crimes Tuesday—one the strangling and dismemberment of six-year-old Suzanne Degnan—and then smilingly re-enacted the crimes before silent and grim crowds.

For four hours the University of Chicago sophomore told the State's Attorney how he strangled Suzanne with his hands last Dec. 7; how he knifed and shot Frances Brown, former WAVE, in her apartment last Dec. 10; how he slashed and strangled Mrs. Josephine Ross, 43, a divorcee, in her apartment June 5, 1945.

After his confession and re-enactment of the slayings—re-enactments in which he commented briefly on changes made in the homes of his victims since he last was in them—he was taken to a South Side apartment to re-enact an assault on Miss Evalyn Peterson, former Army nurse. He attacked and wounded her in her apartment in October, 1945.

"NO SATISFACTION"

Later, the State's attorney planned to question him about his many burglaries and other assaults.

The youth, who spends much of his time in the county jail in prayer, said he got "no satisfaction" from the slayings, but did derive sexual gratification—his underlying motive in all his crimes—from his many burglaries. He killed Mrs. Ross and Miss Brown when they surprised him burglarizing their homes. He entered the Degnan home intent on burglary, he said, and killed the child when she awoke.

Heirens, described by authorities as a person with a Jekyll-Hyde personality—a good side and a bad side—told how he named his bad self "George Murman" and of his inner conflict between "myself and George."

After his confession, which amounted to at least 20,000 words, he was taken to the scenes of the slayings. In his re-enactment at the Degnan home, a ladder was propped against the window and he climbed into Suzanne's bedroom, returning to the window in a few moments and climbing down again.

DEGNANS NOT AT HOME

He smiled faintly at several points in the re-enactment. The child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Degnan, who reportedly are expecting another child soon, were not at home.

A crowd of about 2,000 persons jostled and shoved to get a look at the killer. He was taken to the basement of an apartment building nearby where he dissected the child's body.

Manacled, and surrounded by police, he walked down the middle of the street. Huge crowds, including mothers and children who had been terrorized during the youth's crime career, watched silently, grimly, from the curbs. Heirens glanced frequently to both sides.

After the re-enactment was completed at the Degnan home, he was taken to the homes of Mrs. Ross and Miss Brown to re-enact those crimes.

In his confession of the slaying of Miss Brown, he told of climbing the fire escape of her apartment and entering through a window. When she screamed, he said, he struck her four times with the butt of his gun. Then he shot her once in the head.

COULD NOT REMEMBER

He said he could not remember sticking a knife into her throat or dragging her bleeding body to the bathroom, where it was found draped over the side of the tub.

Nor could he remember washing blood from the body, he said, or removing the pajama pants. But he said he did not attempt the sex act.

The slaying, he said, "did not bother me at all."

In his confession of the murder of Mrs. Ross, he said he entered her home to burglarize and "got excited and took out a knife and stabbed her."

That slaying didn't "bother" him, either, he said. After ramming the knife into her throat during her life struggle, he said, he remembered nothing until he found himself seated in a chair.

He said the character "George Murman" was a "concoction of my imagination."

Authorities described the youth as a schizophrenic, a person with two personalities, one good and one bad. He eased his conscience by blaming "George" for the crimes.

The Jekyll-Hyde youth arose Tuesday morning, said his prayers—he has been making a novena—and then was taken to the State's

FBI Enters Garsson Probe; Spotlight Turns on Higgins

Kaiser and Railroads Facing Investigation

By ANN HICKS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—(UP)—The FBI took over the investigation into alleged war profiteering by the Garsson munitions ring Tuesday, but the Senate's own investigators admitted unhappily that Rep. Andrew J. May's ailing heart might spare him questioning on his connection with the Midwestern combine.

The FBI move was the first step toward possible criminal prosecution of the leading lights of the Garsson combine, which allegedly rolled up huge profits on war contracts obtained through political influence.

It coincided with the announcement in New Orleans that the Justice Department has launched an inquiry into the wartime operations of Andrew Jackson Higgins, the obscure boat builder who skyrocketed into industrial fame during the war years as a master maker of naval craft, airplanes and plastics.

Tuesday Higgins issued a formal statement to the press. He said:

"I am surprised and amazed that accusations against myself and members of my organization should be made prior to complete investigation. To my knowledge, the action and conduct of Higgins Industries and its affiliate companies have been subjected to the strictest scrunity of all branches of the Government services, both during and after the war.

"This was done with our fullest co-operation. No irregularities have been brought to our attention. I am confident that none exist."

The Senate War Investigating Committee, which uncovered the Garsson case and produced witnesses who linked May to the combine, also has been asked to look into Henry J. Kaiser, whose wartime rise to profitable prominence closely paralleled that of Higgins.

Committee Chairman James M. Mead, Democrat, New York, and Atty. Gen. Tom Clark announced after a closed conference that the FBI has taken over the Garsson inquiry from the Senate group.

Internal Revenue agents also have been assigned to the case, they said, to investigate possible tax irregularities by the companies and their principal officers.

There was no word from either official as to whether May would be scrutinized by the FBI or the Federal tax examiners.

But Mead acknowledged to reporters that there seemed little prospect of getting the ailing Kentuckian—he suffered a heart attack on the eve of a scheduled

ARMY RECORD SET

Hawaiian Drones End Flight to California

MUROC, Cal., Aug. 6—(AP)—Two Army B-17 drones landed at this Army Air Base at 11:51 and 12:08 a. m. Tuesday completing a 2,400-mile flight from Hilo, Hawaii. It was the longest totally unmanned flight in aviation history. The drones were controlled by one mother ship each.

The flights were completed in approximately 15 hours and 40 minutes. The only previous unmanned drone flights in history were made for the two atomic bomb tests from Eniwetok to Bikini and return.

There have been numerous other drone flights, of an experimental nature, but high Army officers said all carried a safety pilot.

The flights were made at 150 to 165 miles per hour and about 6,500 feet altitude. Both drones took off in a drizzle and had to climb through cumulus clouds to reach altitude. They were flown on automatic pilots operated by remote control from accompanying mother planes piloted by Capt. Ragner Carlson, of Mt. Shasta, Cal., and Capt. Gordon Barrett, Pittsfield, Mass.

Radio operators of the drone-controlled planes, called beepers, were Capt. John Evans, Kalispell, Mont., and Maj. Robert Leimbacher, Joliet, Ill. Leimbacher's drone landed at 11:51 after an 11 p. m. (EST) takeoff from Lynan Field at Hilo.

The other drone left Hilo at 10:40 p. m.

Just off the California coast Leimbacher's drone dropped a 100-pound practice smoke bomb near Santa Rosa Island. This involved opening the bomb bay doors, releasing the bomb and reclosing the door, all by remote control.

The operation, known as Remote, was conceived by Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay at Eniwetok shortly after the first atomic bomb test to prove the efficiency and practicability of guided missiles.

375 Homeless Children Are a Welfare Problem

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

Lil' Squirt is six days old and the loneliest baby in Atlanta.

Nobody loves him, nobody wants him.

True, he has few accomplishments. He lies in a crib in a big hospital, gnaws his crumpled pink fists when he's hungry or sleeps or yells, depending upon his mood. Once, the nurses vow, he opened his cloudy blue eyes and gave them a smile.

But, the nurses could be prejudiced. They know that Lil' Squirt (they named him that themselves) has little reason to smile. No proud father hovers outside the nursery window for a glimpse of him. No anxious mother awaits his visits to her room with a ribbon in her hair and a book on child care in her hand.

In fact, the only interest anybody has shown in Lil' Squirt came from a caseworker from the Fulton County Department of Public Welfare.

She put his name in a folder marked "Urgent!"

The Children's Division of the Department of Public Welfare must find a home for Lil' Squirt—not a permanent home, but a home with people who would be willing to keep him for six months and then give him up. The only trouble is that folder which contains his name is already bulging with the names of several hundred other children for whom homes must be found.

Lil' Squirt is one of an apparently growing number of children who have either been abandoned by their parents or were taken from them by the Juvenile Court because of poverty, immorality or neglect. He is one of a smaller but nonetheless disturbing number of babies whose mothers are married but not to the fathers of their children. He is, in short, a victim of the war. His father doesn't want him—his mother can't keep him.

Wellborn Ellis, of the Department of Public Welfare, and Miss Cleveland Zahner, supervisor of the Children's division, said yesterday the normal operation of the department, which cares for approximately 10,000 people, could

Truman Choice Leads in Missouri; Byrd's Opponent Concedes Defeat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With 139 of 255 precincts heard from, Enos A. Axtell, favored by President Truman, had a sizeable margin over Rep. Roger C. Slaughter in yesterday's Fifth District Democratic Congressional primary in Missouri.

Axtell, supported also by the CIO-PAC and the Pendergast organization of Kansas City, had 12,468 to 8,796 for Slaughter, Truman-opposed, and 2,659 for Jerome Walsh.

First results from yesterday's six State primaries came late last night when Martin A. Hutchinson, Richmond attorney, conceded defeat by Sen. Harry F. Byrd for the Democratic senatorial nomination. Byrd at the time was ahead about two to one.

The Virginian was opposed by the CIO-PAC. Hutchinson, first to challenge the Government economy advocate since he entered the Senate in 1933, congratulated Byrd and pledged him his "full support" in the November election.

Rep. Ralph H. Daughton, of Norfolk, one of four Virginia Congressmen seeking Democratic nomination, was far behind Porter Hardy, Jr., farmer, in the Second District, but other incumbents were in the lead.

Returns from other races at a late hour last night:

Missouri Senatorial—Democratic, Sen. Frank P. Briggs, Truman-supported, was far out in front of two contestants, while James P. Kem, Kansas City lawyer, was making a one-sided race in the Republican five-man contest.

West Virginia—Sen. Harley M. Kilgore, backed by the CIO-PAC, had a four-to-one lead for Democratic renomination over J. Buhl Shahan. In the Republican race, Thomas Sweeney, former State Senator, had a two-to-one margin over Mayor Claude R. Hill, of Oak Hill.

Kansas—Harry H. Woodring, Democrat favoring repeal of state prohibition, and Rep. Frank Carlson, Republican, had apparently insurmountable leads for gubernatorial nominations.

New Hampshire—U. S. Rep. Sherman Adams led Gov. Charles M. Dale for the Republican gubernatorial nomination 11,183 to 10,311 in returns from 175 of 296 towns and wards. In the Democratic Governorship contest, Mayor F. Clyde Keefe, of Dover, was gradually building up a lead over Harry Carlson, former assistant to Commerce Secretary Wallace.

Arkansas—Rep. Fadjo Cravens, of Fort Smith, forged ahead of his fellow townsman, Lee Whittaker, former Army Air Forces sergeant, in the Fourth District Congressional Democratic primary with two-thirds of the precincts reporting. In 183 of the 274 precincts, Cravens had 6,192 votes, Whittaker 5,597.

Four other Congressmen were nominated yesterday without formal opposition.

Wyatt Sees 1,200,000 Goal Despite Housing Setbacks

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—(AP)—Nearly 500,000 houses were started and 225,000 finished in the first half year of the housing drive, Wilson Wyatt announced Tuesday, but his report revealed a variety of housing troubles.

The National Housing Administrator called the results "encouraging" in view of the hurdles surmounted. There still is "strong likelihood," he said, of reaching the 1946 goal of 1,200,000 new dwellings.

These setbacks were recorded, however, in his second monthly progress report, covering six months of the Homes-for-Veterans Program:

1. The number of new home starts dropped in June to 92,500, or 12,000 under May instead of increasing as expected.

2. Factory-built housing has lagged so far behind expectations that the 1946 goal has been cut from 250,000 pre-fabs to 100,000.

3. Building time has lengthened from a normal period of three to four months per house to six or seven months, because of slow deliveries of materials.

Greater reliance will be placed on traditional methods of building, Wyatt reported, since it appears that mass production of prefabricated homes "cannot be expected until 1947."

Accordingly, the target for private, permanent homes of the traditional types has been boosted from 650,000 new starts this year to 738,000, because of the "gratifying success" so far in getting such homes under construction. The number of "conversions"—

Through in Mexico, Mickey Eyes Old Job

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Aug. 6—(AP)—Mickey Owen, former Brooklyn catcher who jumped the Dodgers to play in the Mexican League, said here Tuesday he was definitely through with Jorge Pasquel's Mexican baseball setup and would like to rejoin the Dodgers and help them win the World Series.

"If I can't get back into organized baseball, I'll operate my Springfield, Mo., farm for a living before I return to Pasquel's Mexican League," he said.

In Brooklyn, Branch Rickey, President of the Dodgers, said "I'll help that boy all I can."

In Mexico City, Gerardo Pasquel, one of the five brothers who dominate Mexican baseball, said Owen had broken a five-year contract. He said Owen had not said anything in advance about leaving. His secretary hinted at legal action. Jorge Pasquel, President of the League, is out of Mexico City and could not be reached for comment.

Owen, who arrived here unexpectedly Monday night, said he would take a train straight home to his folks in Springfield. He is accompanied by his wife.

The colorful catcher said he was "highly dissatisfied" with the Mexican League. He said he could explain why he left Mexico but if he did, "it would get a lot of good guys still playing down there in trouble."

"Didn't you like Mexico itself?" he was asked.

"Mexico's okay," he said, "but it ain't the United States."

He said he would like to be

More Rain on Way; Mercury About Same

Atlanta cooled pleasantly under a heavy rainstorm, which cut off electricity in some sections of South Atlanta yesterday, and the weatherman announced last night the rains would continue today and tomorrow.

Georgia Power Company officials said some residents were denied lights a short time when several transformers were blown during the storm.

A tree fell across power lines at the intersection of Callan Circle and McLendon Avenue, but damage was not extensive.

The weather bureau said little change in temperature was seen, with a high and low of 88 and 70 today and a high of 90 tomorrow.

Yesterday's high and low were 89 and 69.

112 New Plants in Seven Months Put Atlanta on Top in Southeast

By WELLINGTON WRIGHT

Atlanta is showing the Southeast the way to bigger and better achievements in commerce and in industry.

During the past seven months 112 new manufacturing concerns have established, or are now engaged in establishing plants in the Atlanta area. Of these new plants 17 came in during the last month.

Within 12 or 15 months, according to Frank Shaw, manager of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce Industrial Bureau, these 112 new plants will employ 12,000 workers with an annual payroll of about $24,000,000. This delay derives from the fact that some concerns, like Ford and General Motors, are now at work in constructing their plants and thus cannot yet start their assembly lines.

These additions bring the total number of manufacturing plants in the Atlanta area to 1,142. When the new plants get into production, Shaw estimates the total annual industrial payroll of the area will reach $140,000,000 and the total number of factory workers will top the 72,000 mark.

For comparative purposes, Shaw recalled that on Jan. 1, 1940, the total number of manufacturing plants in the Atlanta area stood at 883.

"We have made tremendous progress here during the past seven months," Shaw commented. "But we expect to make much

'PLAIN, HONEST' VALDOSTA LAD IS IN THE RACE

Will Phillips Be Governor in 1962?

By KATHARINE BARNWELL

It was in a small uncrowded restaurant on an April afternoon that a gang of Valdosta high school boys sat sipping soft drinks and shooting the bull.

The subject swung to government and politics, as it so often does.

After the parley had touched on the pros and cons of all the usual subjects, and some that weren't so usual, a somewhat cynical teenager ventured a flat statement:

"It simply isn't possible for a plain, honest man to become Governor of Georgia."

That raised the ire, or somethings closely akin, of a tall, lanky Valdosta High senior, 17-year-old W. Barry Phillips.

He didn't believe it, and he challenged the remark.

In his opinion, the highest rung on the State's political ladder can be reached honestly. And Barry decided then and there that he would try to reach it thus.

So Barry Phillips will be a candidate for Governor of Georgia in 1962 or 1966.

On the day following the restaurant conclave, Barry and a group of his buddies wrote 450 letters to young people in the State. Barry informed them of his intention of running for Governor.

"I pointed out to them," he says, "that some of them are going to study to become doctors, some to be lawyers, some to be engineers, and so on. I told them that I am going to study to become Governor. I think that the governorship is a job that should be studied for, just as any other."

Constitution Staff Photo—Edna Weston

W. BARRY PHILLIPS
His Hat Is In the Ring

More than 1,000 letters explaining Barry's plan now have been dispatched. The response thus far has been gratifying, Barry says, explaining:

"Even if I had received only one letter, indorsing honest government, I would have been satisfied. You see, that would have made two of us."

Barry emphasizes his plans to run for Governor has nothing to do with the recent gubernatorial campaign in Georgia. He made his decision even before the campaign just past got under way.

"We believe the youth of the State should decide now what kind of government they want in the future," he said.

In speaking of his plans Barry nearly always uses the plural "we." He says that's to avoid using "the conceited 'I'."

Although he admits that some people regard him as "a crackpot," Barry isn't worried about that. He has set his goal, and he's going about attaining it.

Barry's high school record is one of which any boy could be proud. He made excellent grades. He was President of his Junior and Senior Class. He won on the debating team. And he was an All-Southern football tackle.

He was graduated last June, and he now is enrolled at the University of Georgia, where he will study law. After receiving his law degree, he plans to enter public service.

FOUR YEARS AGO TODAY

First Marines Landed On Fiery Guadalcanal

By DANIEL BAILEY.

The following story was written by a former Marine Corps combat correspondent, Sgt. Daniel Bailey, who served on Guadalcanal. He now is a member of The Constitution news staff.

It was not a big landing . . . like Iwo Jima or Normandy. By later-day standards the Guadalcanal-Tulagi assault might be adjudged relatively small. It was not insignificant.

It was big in importance.

It was an almost prostrate America's first attempt to fight back a powerful, vicious foe that had run rough-shod over the Western Pacific and brought grave danger close to Australia and New Zealand and thus close to home . . .

It was America's first counter-offensive of World War II.

It was carried out by the First Marine Division, Reinforced, a unit of a bare 15,000 men.

Running ashore through foamy waves that clear, cool morning was an eerie and strange experience for the Marines. They were beginning America's fight for existence, for freedom. They were the fist Uncle Sam finally had managed to raise against an aggressor that first had knifed him then pounded him incessantly with body blows.

WITHOUT PRECEDENT

And the Marines had no precedent to follow, no directives or instructions to direct them how to fight the Jap and fight him in thick, choking jungles. They had only a glorious history of 167 years of success in every undertaking. It would be literally, in the beginning anyhow, a hit and miss affair.

That first day on Guadalcanal there was no enemy. He had vanished from Lunga Beach on the northern side of Guadalcanal near the airfield where the landing was made.

The fleet's barrage had sent him scampering like mice. He had deserted make-shift huts holding a little equipment and tables set with breakfast. Here and there was a pistol or rifle or a samurai sword left in the rush. The Americans' reception was a quiet, ghostly one.

Tulagi was different. Marine Raiders and infantrymen encountered bitter resistance. It was short-lived. Slashing and plunging and screaming, the Raiders gouged out the heart of the Jap defense and mopped up the remaining split forces in bloody skirmishes. Few Jap prisoners were taken.

PATROLS ON PROWL

On "the Canal," as it was soon named, the Marines dispatched patrols and pulled their lines up to the Lunga River beyond the airfield. That was their assignment:

Seize a perimeter around the airfield and hold it until relieved.

More than 6,000 miles away Americans held their breath . . . What did it mean, this attack on the Solomon Islands? Where were the Solomon Islands? What was Guadalcanal? Would the Japs let them stay there?

It was a weird place to fight a war . . . colorful, screeching cockatoos and parakeets raced through the high branches of the cocoanut trees . . . northern breezes brought in a pure, salty tang from the sea . . . the sun was intoxicating and warm.

At dusk there still was no enemy. With sentries posted the Marines crawled into freshly dug foxholes and dreamed restlessly of Jap hiding places in the huge dark green hills south of the airfield.

THE BEGINNING

Thus began the most important battle of the Pacific war. On it perhaps hinged the success or failure for all America's part in the Western struggle. It was the starting place—the only one available—for America's fight for life. With the Marines victorious, Guadalcanal would become the hub of all future United States offensive operations. With defeat . . . ?

The peaceful welcome accorded the First Division at Guadalcanal the first day did not last.

Jap snipers began their work. Sniping developed into skirmishes. Skirmishes grew into battles, great battles whose din and importance were heard and felt around the world.

To the Japs Guadalcanal was a necessary link in all operations to come. It should remain in their possession if their World Empire dream was to become a reality. The Americans would have to be driven away.

FIGHT FOR LIFE

To the Americans Guadalcanal was the starting line in a determined fight for their lives. It was life itself.

Hold Gudalcanal. Hold it at all costs.

The costs were heavy.

The Marines had only the men and supplies with which they had landed—barely enough to insure a relatively safe assault. More would be essential for a prolonged struggle. More had been promised, but . . .

The Japs had the island's original garrisons and were reinforced regularly with fresh troops and fresh supplies. They commanded the advantageous positions in the hills.

The Jap was not the Marines' only enemy. Hunger, exhaustion and disease attacked the Americans. Ammunition ran low. Spirits steadfastly ran high.

Out of the bloody cauldron drifted names and stories to be etched indelibly in the minds and hearts of all Americans . . . the fierce battles of the Lunga, Tenaru, Ilo and Matankau Rivers . . . the Battle of Bloody Ridge when 1,000 Marines defeated a force of 5,000 fanatical Japs . . . the story of Carlson's Raiders fighting 30 days behind Jap lines and marching back singing at the top of their lungs . . . the story of Al Schmidt, blinded by a Jap grenade, guiding his machine-gun by instructions from a maimed buddy . . . the name of Joe Foss, first airman to equal Eddie Rickenbacker's World War I record of downing 26 enemy planes . . . and John Smith, whose squadron of outmoded planes shot down 111 Zeros . . .

After three months of bitter struggles, the Jap's motivating spirit of fanaticism snapped before the dogged plugging of the Marines, who not only refused to give up but would not die.

The Japs began falling back, inch by inch, across the island's green foreboding hills.

And then . . . reinforcements, reinforcements and relief and blessed rest for the Americans.

The Japs were crushed . . . likewise their dream of world domination . . .

Today, Aug. 7, 1946, is the fourth anniversary of the most important day in the American History of World War II, the first D-Day, the day the Marines stopped the Japs' mad plunge to a Nipponese victory and blazed the way for a victorious America.

The day is doubly significant because it marks the first anniversary of the first atomic bomb . . . a project which, however, probably would not have been possible without the Battle of Guadalcanal . . .

FIRST D-DAY—It was four years ago today, Aug. 7, 1942, that America was able to make its first attempt at halting the Japs' steam-roller plunge to world conquest. This was the announcement as it appeared in The Constitution Aug. 11. Barely 15,000 Marines, less than a full division, splashed ashore at Lunga Beach on the Northern side of Guadalcanal in the Solomons to wrest the offensive from the Japs and mark the turning point of the war. To hold the vital island, the Marines, members of the First Marine Division, fought off three times their number despite hunger, disease and exhaustion.

Hotel Man's Suggestion 'Revives' State's C of C

Revival of the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce, chartered in the '20's and inactive since the early '30's, has been recommended by the Executive Committee of the Georgia Hotel Association, in order to promote the economic welfare of the State.

This revived organization, according to the resolution, would "undertake a plan of promotion directed toward the expansion of industry, of agriculture, of commerce and all service institutes needed to keep Georgia active and profitable."

Informed of this movement, Roy Ulrich, secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, said he approved of it, but that such an organization is already in existence, though no winactive.

"During the 1920s the Georgia Association came into being," said Ulrich. "It put on a program known as 'the corn, hog and hen campaign' and was quite successful. Then it became the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce, a chartered organization.

"Early in the 1930s, Fred Abbott, the Secretary, died, and the organization dropped out of the limelight. Wiley Moore was its last President. However, to keep the organization alive, I have paid the annual charter fees and am now on record as the Acting Secretary, with Lee Trimble, now of the Tourist Panel of the Georgia State Agricultural and Industrial Development Board, as its acting President.

"When the necessity arises, the organization is already there. We'll be glad to have someone take it over and do the work the hotel men think ought to be done."

The Executive Committee of the Georgia Hotel Association met here at the Piedmont Hotel yesterday. Those present:

Fincher Williams, Savannah, President of the Association; S. E. Parrott, Atlanta, First Vice President; L. O. Moseley, Atlanta, Treasurer; Stephen Styron, Secretary; George Fowler, Savannah; Leo Guest, Moultrie; D. O. Beusse, Atlanta; H. M. Block, Macon; Joe C. McCord, Dalton; Tom Waddill, Waycross; W. W. $4,500,000 STILL AT SEA

British Government Files Salvage Claim

LONDON, Aug. 6—(AP)—The British Government laid salvage claim Tuesday night to the collision-battered U. S. Lines Freighter American Farmer and her cargo—a $4,500,000 prize—as she plowed through choppy seas toward England.

A British attorney, indicating the case might be settled out of court, said the government had filed claim on behalf of the Ministry of Transport and the 2,039-ton British Steamer Elizabete, which said she put the first towline on the American Farmer and thus won salvage rights.

Sixteen hours later a crew from the American Ranger, sister ship of the American Farmer, took over the wallowing vessel and a dispute about salvage arose. The American Farmer had been abandoned by her American crew after colliding in a fog last week with the S. S. William J. Riddle.

The British Government attorney said the U. S. Lines had ordered its attorneys to put up cash security against the British claim. He added that the amount of security had not been settled.

He said, however, that the American Farmer—now edging toward Falmouth at eight knots—would not be "arrested" when she makes port Wednesday, an indication that an Admiralty court procedure would be avoided.

The lawyer added that the case "may be settled without a trial, but we haven't got the full facts yet."

Thomas Monroe, Manager of the London office of the U. S. lines, declined to discuss the case.

The American Farmer is carrying a food cargo estimated at $2,000,000. The vessel herself was estimated to be worth $2,500,000.

VOTERS IN BUCKHEAD'S PRECINCT B TO CAST BOND BALLOTS IN STYLE

If the residents of Precinct B in Buckhead don't vote Aug. 14 in the bond election, it won't be the fault of the Peachtree Hills Terrace Civic Club.

The club members are doing everything possible to make the life of a voter pleasant, easy and down-right delightful.

They promise enough electric fans in the auditorium of E. Rivers School, where Precinct B votes, to make the atmosphere cool and breezy.

They hope to have enough workers at the machines to give each voter the works in five minutes flat.

And to make things simple for the Buckhead housewife, one classroom at E. Rivers will be furnished with toys and equipped to keep the children while mother votes.

Quake Toll In Caribbean Now 22 Lives

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic, Aug. 6—(AP)—For the third straight day earthquakes and tidal waves battered coastal towns of this Caribbean republic Tuesday, causing many residents to flee in panic into forests in the interior. The known death toll reached 22.

The shocks which began Sunday caused 20 deaths in the adjoining communities of Bajio and Cabrera on Scotch Bay in the northeastern section of the country. Many persons were reported injured or missing in this region, and Bajio with covered with two feet of water by the latest tidal wave. Earlier advices said one person was killed in Santiago and another in San Francisco de Macoris.

Government rescue workers attempting to transport the injured to hospitals were hampered in some localities by torn up roads.

Food and clothing were dropped by Government planes to the people who fled from Matanzas Sunday and took refuge in a nearby forest. In the north coast town of Puerto Plata many residents fled in panic into forests. New shocks were reported at Puerto Plata and also at Los Llanos, which suffered heavy damage.

Belated reports from Matanzas said the first shocks and tidal waves had destroyed 424 houses, many of which were toppled by an eight-foot wall of water.

Restored communications brought word that Villa Riva, Pimentel, Higuey and Villa Isabel, the center of a rice growing region, had been hard hit. The historic church at Higuey was damaged.

An examination disclosed that the west wall of the Ciudad Trujillo Cathedral, oldest in the Western Hemisphere, was cracked laterally.

20 Policemen in Holdup Hunt Set West End Sector Agog

The West End section of Atlanta was aroused last night when a score of patrolmen and nine police cars participated in the capture of two youths in connection with the $150 robbery of a salesman.

Those arrested identified themselves as J. L. Bishop, 23, of an Arlington Ave., S. W., address, and C. R. Staples, 23, of a Hayden St., N. W., address. They were charged with suspicion of robbery and lodged in the city jail without bond.

They were captured by Radio Patrolmen R. J. Stowers and J. J. Morris following a wild pursuit which thre wthe usually quiet section into excitement and which developed a serio-comic touch.

WAS MAKING DELIVERY

According to the report of Stowers and Morris, C. R. Waller, 45, of 2251 Stephen Long Dr., N. E., Peachtree Hills, salesman for a wholesale tobacco firm, parked his light delivery truck on Lucile Ave., S. W., near Holderness St., at about 10 p. m.

As Waller stepped from the vehicle to make a delivery at a store nearby, he told police, two youths approached, pistols in hand and grim in manner. They demanded money. Waller said the youths took $150 cash from him and an undetermined number of checks.

The youths then ran. Waller shouted for help and pursued the pair for a short distance. Then he called police. Police arrived, three cars containing detectives, four city patrol cars and two Fulton County police cars.

CROWDS GATHER

As screaming sirens aroused the neighborhood and police scrambled from their cars in search of the alleged bandits, residents of the area ran from their homes to join in the hunt or to learn what caused the excitement.

At one point in the heated search in a darkened part of the area, Detective S. E. Smith ran up an alley between two houses on Lucile Ave. At the same time, and unknown to him, another detective, W. D. Anderson, had deployed behind the house.

Anderson, moving around cautiously, frightened a large German shepherd dog. The animal ran into the alley where Smith was proceeding with his search. The animal knocked Smith down and into a shallow pool.

PLUNGES INTO WEEDS

At Eggleston and Holderness Sts., Stowers noted a figure moving in weeds six feet high. With gun drawn, he plunged into the weeds and grabbed the young man who gave his name as Bishop.

A moment or so later, his partner, Morris, cried out: "There goes another one!" Stowers turned Bishop over to Morris and went in pursuit of the other fleeing, dimly-seen figure. This, according to police reports, was Staples.

Checks for $85 and $20 were found in possession of the captured men, according to police. However, the only cash recovered was $1.47, concealed in papers containing a headache powder.

When the police cars departed the section with their quarry, peace once again reigned over the West End area.

300 Join Search To Capture Man Ransacking Autos

A crowd of between 200 and 300 persons joined in a search downtown last night for a suspect captured following a patrolman's hunch.

The suspect, Robert Lee Brown, 27, Negro, of a Randolph Street address, had an assortment of cameras, flashlights, cigarettes and other articles in his possession, according to the report of Patrolmen E. V. Forrester and S. R. Smith.

Brown, according to police, admitted taking the articles from cars parked on Harris, Cone, Cain and Poplar Streets. The search in which crowds leaving theaters joined, began when the officers, in a patrol car, noticed the Negro walking on Spring Street, near Harris Street.

Forrester and Smith drove to Harris and Peachtree Streets, parking on Peachtree. As the man passed the car, Forrester said, "Come here, boy. I want to talk to you." The Negro took to his heels, Forrester and Smith in pursuit on foot.

The chase moved from Harris and Peachtree to Peachtree and Ellis, with the crowd increasing in size as the chase progressed. The Negro was captured in an alley, cowering in a clump of bushes. He was charged with suspicion of larceny.

HEIRENS

Attorney's office. He was cool as he made his statement.

He told how he climbed into Suzanne's bedroom, strangled her and carried her body to the basement of a nearby apartment building. He cut up her body with a hunting knife and dropped the parts in sewers and catch basins within a six-block radius of her home. Later he returned to the Degnan home and tossed a ransom note demanding $20,000 into her room.

In his confession, which at times was incoherent, he attempted to show he was in a mental fog as the result of "six shots" of whiskey while drinking with university friends.

His story, given to the State's Attorney under a defense agreement with the State to exchange it for a recommendation of life imprisonment, was one of the most amazing documents in crime annals.

Heirens said he could not remember butchering the body and disposing of the parts. But he did remember when a sewer cover dropped on his hand as he disposed of one last portion of an arm.

During his grisly story of the Degnan slaying he attempted repeatedly to show his confused state of mind. He said he could remember disposing of the last part of the body—an arm—which he placed in a sewer, he said.

Yet, after he had disposed of the body, he said he threw the knife onto an elevated railroad right of way, went to a restaurant for doughnuts and coffee, and returned to his University of Chicago dormitory and "studied" his lessons for the day's classes.

He said he left his classes at the University, where he was a sophomore, Jan. 6 and started drinking with some friends.

"I had about six shots," he said. "I had gone to my room. I had taken off my coat and prepared for bed. Then it just came on me to go out and I went out."

BOARDED TRAIN, SLEPT

He said he boarded a northbound elevated train, fell asleep, and when he awoke got off at a station near the Degnan home on the North Side.

Heirens said he walked east until he came to the vicinity of the Degnan home in a section where he had committed countless burglaries.

"I turned into the alley (behind the Degnan home) and there was a ladder lying there," he said.

He took the ladder, intending to burglarize an apartment, but the ladder would not reach the window he wanted to enter. He took the ladder back down the alley.

"When I seen the Degnan home I went to the window that was least lighted . . . I entered."

It was Suzanne's bedroom.

"When you entered the window of the Degnan home, for what purpose did you enter?" Crowley asked.

"Burglary," Heirens replied calmly.

"I noticed somebody sleeping on the right hand of the bed. Then I went toward the door, and dizzy as I was, I may have awakened whoever it was by brushing against the bed or something of that sort . . . But anyway, whoever it was there before I had reached the door to open it, got up in bed, sat up . . . I started talking . . . that is where I got her . . . I took the person, I didn't know if it was a child at the time, and I didn't know until I read it in the paper that it was a child. Then I knew it must have been a female because of the long hair which I seen by the flashlight."

"A FEMALE, YES"

"Then you could have seen it was a girl, couldn't you?"

"A female, yes, with long hair . . . my vision was not too good," Heirens replied.

"Then what did you do?"

"I strangled her."

"How long did you keep your hands on her neck?"

"About two minutes."

"You squeezed as hard as you could?"

"Until everything went limp. Then I got back . . . picked up the body and carried it down. Going down the ladder I believe I stepped my right leg over the sill first onto the other rund and I carried her to the lower . . . from that position I was carrying the child with my arms in front . . . then I got to the apartment building."

The apartment building was located a block south of the Degnan home. He took the body into the basement and dissected it in a washtub.

He said he obtained the knife "in any burglary that may have been committed by me. I do not know where it was taken from."

WASHED TUBS, KNIFE

"And you had it with you when you were in the basement after you had disposed of the arms and body?" Crowley asked.

"Yes, sir."

"Did you wash the knife then?"

"It was laying across the basin there and as I washed the tubs I must have washed the knife also."

"At that time you knew that you had used that knife in cutting up the body, did you?"

"I didn't know what I had cut up."

"You knew you had cut up something, didn't you?"

"I didn't know I was doing any cutting up as far as that is concerned, but there was blood in the washtub and at that time my mind was quite clear . . . not too clear but clear enough to realize it must have been used for some purpose of that sort."

He replied "no," when asked if he could remember cutting off the head, the torso, the arms or the legs.

He said that while he was disposing of the last portion of the body, an arm, a sewer cover "fell on my finger and it woke me up a little bit and I remember from there practically everything, vaguely, but everything."

After the cover fell on his finger he said, he was "not quite sure" but he believed he returned to the basement near the Degnan home where he had dissected the body.

He noticed blood in the washtub.

"I had some inkling of what happened," he said. "I realized I didn't know the exact facts of what happened until later I read about it and it was made known to me that way, but what I knew of it then, I realized something terrible had happened.

"I cleaned up the blood and then it dawned on me something must have happened to the child.

ARM WAS IN BAG

He said the arm was in a bag, found in a locker in the basement, and that up to the time the cover fell he did not know what was in the bag.

After returning to the basement he wrote a ransom note, demanding $20,000.

Asked why he wrote the note, he said:

"It came into my head that I had done something as I told you before and I realized it must have been the child and I didn't address the note because I didn't know the name of the people so to relieve the parents in all ways possible I could, would be to give them some hope the child was alive and that is the manner in which I wrote it."

LOGICAL WARNING

He said he warned the parents in the note not to notify police or Federal Bureau of Investigation agents because he thought it was logical to do so.

After cleaning up the basement and writing the note, he went back to the Degnan home. He found the ladder propped aaginst the child's bedroom window where he had left it. He climbed part way up and tossed the note into the room.

Then, he said, he took the ladder to an adjacent alley.

He found an oil can in the basement where he wrote the ransom note. He squirted oil on the note "to disguise it" and obliterate fingerprints. Later he burned the oil can, along with the coat he was wearing.

RESEMBLED KNIFE

Confronted with the knife, he said it resembled the one he used.

He said he had not attempted to derive sexual satisfaction from the child's body.

Heirens was captured June 26, in a Northside apartment near the Degnan home while attempting burglary. He was struck on the head with three flower pots in a fight with three policemen. For three days he feigned delirium.

On June 28, police discovered his fingerprints matched prints on the ransom note. After two days of questioning he gave his first coherent statement, attempting to blame "George Murman" for his burglaries.

Subsequently his prints were found to match two palm prints on the note and a palm print on the door jamb in Miss Brown's apartment.

He also gave himself away when required to write out the ransom note. He spelled words "waite" and "safty" in the same way they were spelled in the note.

BONDS FOR NEEDED PAVING—Many Fulton County roads like this one, running to the Lakewood Airport, busy but unpaved—and many others in worse condition—can get hard surfaces when the $40,400,000 bond issue passes Aug. 14, a week from today. Maintenance of present roads takes all the available current county revenue; new roads will take new money—and the bond issue will release it for the purpose.

School Bonds Up for Bids Tomorrow

Bids for purchase of the $2,500,000 Fulton County school bonds will be received by Board members at a special meeting at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Fulton County Courthouse.

Decision to move immediately to market the securities voted in the July 17 State primary came at a Board session yesterday at which the 1946-47 school budget calling for an outlay of $2,387,500 was approved.

Jere A. Wells, Fulton School Superintendent, said the Board feels it should sell the bonds as soon as practicable to provide needed improvements to the system and to speed up inauguration of the 7-5 educational program, already adopted by school systems of the metropolitan area.

VALIDATED SEPT. 8

The bonds will be validated on Sept. 8, but Fulton school officials believe arrangements should be pushed to insure their early sale.

The new budget, calling for the expenditure of $2,387,500 for the coming school year, is the largest in history. It is approximately $300,000 more than the 1945-46 budget. Principal items are $1,837,500 for instructional service, $175,000 for operation of plants, $175,000 for repairs to existing buildings, $70,000 for transportation of students to schools, and $45,000 for administration. The remaining sums are allocated for purchase of equipment, libraries and other incidental outlays.

SUBJECTS OUTLINED

For years, Fulton schools have had a 7-4 system, which means seven elementary grades and four for high schools. Under the new plan a fifth grade will be added to high schools. English, arithmetic, spelling and penmanship, health science, and American citizenship will be required subjects in the newly created classes for the high schools, with music as an elective.

Wells said students who already are in high school will continue under the old system until they are graduated.

The following new teachers were elected:

Mrs. W. H. Bates, Helen Bomar, Elizabeth Taylor, Mrs. Yonah Holbrook, Ruth Higgins, Arnold Holmes, Anne Isbell, Joneta Burdett, Stephen J. Schmidt, Jewel Fountain, Mrs. Harold Brown, Lura Mae Harrison, Mrs. Lucy M. McWhorter, Anapearl Seabolt, Mrs. Mattie Mae Webb, Mrs. Irene Wiggins, Elizabeth Wills, Mrs. Carolyn Henslee, William F. Campbell, Sherwin Tucker, Mrs. Mark Johnson, and Willie Mae Chapman.

New Police Broadcast Station For City Sought by Grand Jury

Purchase of a new Atlanta police radio broadcasting system to avoid a possible breakdown of the most important communications link in the Police Department and more efficient operation of the department are being sought by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

Although members of the Grand Jury, of which E. H. Elrod is Foreman, and City Police Chief Hornsby declined to comment on discussions which took place inside the jury room, Hornsby was closeted with the jury for about two hours.

Reports were that Grand Jury members were especially concerned over continued operation of the 16-year-old broadcasting station, which serves the Atlanta Department and other law enforcement agencies in metropolitan Atlanta.

City administration leaders have long recognized that a modern installation must be provided, but no definite move has yet been made to purchase the new equipment.

Ald. Ed A Gilliam, Chairman of City Council's Finance Committee, told Hornsby and other department officials to get their requirements ready and to file a formal request in an off-the-record conference following a meeting of the Police Committee Aug. 1.

At that time, Hornsby told Gilliam and other members of the Police Committee new equipment is mandatory if police broadcasts are to be continued.

It is estimated $30,000 will be required to obtain a site and establish a new station. No major outlay has been made on the existing station since it was installed, and many of the repairs have been improvised, Hornsby says.

Police salaries, failure of some investigators to get signed statements when prisoners confess, improved identification methods and investigations and other phases of departmental operation also were discussed, according to reports.

Hornsby said "it was a nice, friendly conference," but refused to divulge the subjects about which the conversations centered.

TEACHERS TO GET $64,250 BONUS

Fulton County's Board of Education will cut a $64,250 melon for the 735 teachers of the educational system in September.

This decision was reached yesterday with formulation of a plan to distribute the money the State Department will pay into the Fulton school system for the 10th month as a bonus to teachers.

Jere A. Wells, Fulton School Superintendent, said the State will make an extra payment to Fulton schools, and board members decided on the bonus method of distribution.

Menu Prices Still Subject To OPA Control Board

Restaurants must still file all menu prices with the local OPA Price Control Board, Edwin A. Pearce, Regional OPA Price Executive, has reminded.

The fact that meats, poultry, eggs, and other items are no longer controlled will make necessary some price changes in meals, but such changes must be made according to a set formula, Pearce said yesterday.

Menus consisting of new items of foods no longer under OPA control may be recalculated, using the raw food cost plus an established mark-up, he said.

Speer Has Operation

WOODRING GIRL WELL

Rare Drug, Curare, Saves Polio Victim

TOPEKA, Kas., Aug. 6—(AP)—Eleven-year-old Melissa Woodring, second child of former Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring to be stricken with infantile paralysis, was reported recovered by her doctors Tuesday after a single injection of the drug curare. Marcus Woodring, 12, died July 19 as a result of the disease.

The child's father said that shortly after she was taken to the hospital July 25 her doctor, Dr. Paul E. Belknap, and consulting physicians decided to try the seldom-used drug extracted from South American weeds.

"She began improving right then and continued to improve," Woodring said. "The paralysis went away. Every symptom of the disease disappered that afternoon."

In a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Max J. Fox, of Milwaukee, referred to curare as "a dangerous drug not to be encouraged for the treatment of the acute phase of poliomeylitis." An AMA spokesman said, however, that experiments with the drug were continuing.

Woodring, one-time Governor of Kansas and candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor in Tuesday's primary election, commented, "This curare may be just in the experimental stage in the treatment of infantile paralysis, but it worked for our little girl and we are very happy about it."

Early Use of Curare In Georgia Held Unlikely

Curare, the South American drug which Kansas doctors reported cured 11-year-old Melissa Woodring of infantile paralysis, will probably not have widespread use in Georgia until its effects are better known, according to reports from the State Health Department and the Warm Springs Foundation at Warm Springs, Ga.

At Warm Springs, medical officials of the Warm Springs Foundation said the drug has not been used at the hospital, and they did not foresee its use until curare has passed from the experimental stage.

Curare, according to research workers at the State Department of Health, is derived from a plant in the Amazonian jungles, where South American Indians used it for the tips of their poison arrows.

A scratch from one of the arrows brought what the Indians termed a "blind death."

In 1938 it was brought back to the United States, where doctors have used it as an anesthesic in muscle relaxation.

In 1945 a New Jersey hospital used the drug and reported four cases of polio were cured by its use.

The danger in the use of curare had thus far kept it from being used extensively.

Candler Heads Reserve Unit Activated Here

First organized reserve unit to be established in the Third Army Area has been activated here, with an Atlanta lawyer and former B-29 officer, Col. John S. Candler, II, named commanding officer of the 519th Parachute Infantry Regiment.

Lt. Gen. Oscar W. Griswold, Commanding General of the Third Army Area and the person who selected the first 50 men for parachute training in the Army in 1939-40, yesterday presided over activation ceremonies at his offices in the Old Post Office.

The regiment, to consist of one infantry and one field artillery battalion, both parachute-borne, is a unit of the 108th Airborne Division, now in formation.

Col. Theodore L. Futch, Executive for Civilian Components, Third Army Area, said "many reserve units" have been allotted to this area, with at least three divisions to be activated in the future. Georgia alone has a sufficient number of reserve officers, according to Col. Futch, to insure that the National Guard will not be needed for divisions already planned for the area.

Col. Candler, a well-known Atlantan, was commissioned as a ROTC graduate of the University of Georgia in 1929. As Executive Officer of the 333d Bombardment Group, he took the first B-29 unit to Okinawa. Ordered to extended duty in March, 1941, he served with the Army Air Forces until January, 1946.

R. J. Reynolds, II, To Wed Actress

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—(AP)—R. J. Reynolds, II, wealthy tobacco heir and former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, has obtained a license to marry Marian Byrne, an actress, it was disclosed Tuesday at the Municipal Building.

No details as to when or where the ceremony will take place were given.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dillard Reynolds was granted a divorce from Reynolds, former mayor of Winston-Salem, N. C., last June 24 in Miami, Fla., on grounds of mental cruelty.

She charged Reynolds had said he planned to marry another woman upon whom, she claimed, he had bestowed gifts amounting to $100,000. Identity of the woman was not disclosed.

Lt. Simmons Cited For Medical Aid

Lt. Malcolm Freeman Simmons, USN, of Decatur, now stationed at the Jacksonville Base Hospital, was recently awarded a citation "for meritorious conduct in the performance of his duties as medical officer on board a destroyer-minelayer during the Okinawa campaign."

"He treated more than 40 wounded men from other ships," the sitation reads, "some of the treatments being performed during enemy aerial attack. Through his assiduity and professional skill, he was responsible for the speedy recovery of these men.

"His conduct and performance of duty in the face of great danger were inspiring to his men and were in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

A graduate of Decatur High School and Emory Medical School, Lt. Simmons is the son of Mrs. M. M. Simmons, of 102 Greenwood Place, Decatur.

Here's Where the Money Goes

The City of Atlanta proposes a $20,200,000 bond issue, and Fulton County one of $20,000,000. The county will have seven projects of its own, the city, eight of its own, and the city and county, seven jointly. Following is the detail of one of the county's projects:

7. Auxiliary Airports. $1,000,000.

Smaller air parks and air strips are much needed. Not in the category of major airports, they still are essential to the overall development of aviation in the metropolitan area. For one thing, the Municipal Airport cannot handle the great increase in private flying and expect to become a great commercial aviation crossroads. Private flying would be cared for via means of the smaller county fields.

Lawyers Fight To Save Bibb Man From Chair

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Attorneys for L. H. Morris, convicted for the slaying of his wife, pleaded with the State Prison Pardon and Parole Board yesterday to commute his death sentence to life imprisonment because Morris might have been unjustly convicted.

A. M. (Phil) Anderson and T. A. Jacobs, Jr., both of Macon, told the board there was some doubt about Morris' killing his 34-year-old wife in Macon. The two attorneys said there was a strong possibility she might have committed suicide.

Morris was convicted, sentenced to death, then given a reprieve by Gov. Arnall while the State Pardon and Parole Board studied the matter of commutation. The hearing was a continuation of previous testimony offered the board.

The State contended that Morris killed his war-worker wife by putting poison in a drink of whisky.

Mrs. W. T. Morris, mother of the convicted man, and other friends and relatives of Morris sat in the board room as Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Smith testified that it was hard for them to believe that bus driver killed his wife.

Mrs. Smith related events happening on the day of Mrs. Morris' death, such events as "Mrs. Morris told me that day she wanted to hold my baby one more time and she thought this was the last day with her husband."

In answer to a question from Board Chairman Edward B. Everett as to whether she thought Mrs. Morris might have taken the poison because she wanted to, Mrs. Smith replied:

"Yes sir, I do."

Mrs. Smith explained that she had reached the conclusion that Mrs. Morris had become despondent before her death.

EVERY BITE SEEMED TO BRING INDIGESTION, SHE SAYS; LAUDS RETONGA

Mrs. Gardner Says Nervous Indigestion kept Her In Turmoil, But She Now Enjoys Meals and Gets Restful Sleep. Gives Full Credit to Retonga.

"Everything I ate seemed to be the signal for gas pains to start in my stomach, while heartburn and aching muscles made it impossible for me to get refreshing sleep. Retonga brought me blessed relief and now I actually look forward to mealtime," happily declares Mrs. William C. Gardner, respected housewife, of Meridian, Miss. Mrs. Gardner and her husband, who have been residents of Meridian for twenty-seven years, have lived for thirteen years in the cheerful home they own at 810 Church Avenue. Telling of her case, she gratefully declared:

"Nervous indigestion kept my stomach in a turmoil. Almost as soon as I swallowed food it seemed to turn to gas which pressed up against my chest until I felt like I could hardly breathe. Food risings tasting like vinegar followed every meal. My elimination was poor and I suffered almost all the time from aching muscles. I felt bloated and restless and could not sleep soundly and I had horrible dreams when I did manage to sleep.

"My relief through Retonga seems truly remarkable. All the distress from heartburn, gassy stomach and muscular aches is relieved. Poor elimination does not trouble me now and I feel free of toxic waste. Food agrees with me and I now look forward to mealtime with pleasure. I am so grateful to Retonga that I can never give it enough praise for the blessed relief it brought me."

Thousands praise this noted medicine. Retonga is a purely herbal stomachic medicine combined with liberal quantities of Vitamin B-1 and is intended to relieve distress due to insufficient flow of digestive juices in the stomach, loss of appetite, Vitamin B-1 deficiency and constipation. There is only one Retonga; accept no substitute. Retonga may be obtained at Square Deal Drug Store, 10 Broad St., N. W., opposite the Arcade, and May's Cut-Rate Drug Store, 112 Whitehall St., next to Sterchi's.—(adv.)

FRANK LOWSON SPEAKS UP

Contests Constitutionality Of Georgia Election Laws

By JIM FURNISS

With booming voice and pointed finger, a tall, 66-year-old, part-time farmer from Huber yesterday gave Georgia's 5 percent law a rough legal going over as nominations for the November general elections closed.

Claiming the 1943 elections laws were unconstitutional, Frank Lowson, Chairman of a new political party known as the Constitutional Christian Party, dramatically filed a last-minute ticket of candidates during the afternoon here with Secretary of State Ben W. Fortson.

The crux of Lowson's argument it that under the present law, passed in 1943, no new party can ever be listed on a ballot for the general elections because it did not appear on the 1942 ballot as required by the law.

He also contends, rather vigorously, that under the law, the Secretary of State had no right to certify M. E. Thompson as a candidate for the newly created post of Lieutenant Governor since Thompson did not file a petition signed by five percent of the State's registered voters.

ACTION DEFERRED

Fortson, who quietly listened to Lowson's hour-long declamation of the whys and wherefores of the election law's constitutionality, deferred decision on the legal tangle.

According to Lowson, Thompson, who was victorious over several other candidates for the post of Lieutenant Governor in the July 17 Democratic primary, should be excluded from the general election because his name was filed with Fortson Monday on the Democrtic ticket, not on a petition.

The 1943 law requires those certifying without a petition to have polled at least five percent of votes in the last general election, and since the post of Lieutenant Governor was non-existent in 1942, the last general election, Thompson is not legally qualified candidate, Lowson explained.

Rising from his chair and turning piercing blue eyes on Fortson, Lowson referred to a large assortment of Supreme Court decisions to show that the 1943 State election laws were unconstitutional and so worded that no party, other than those listed on the 1942 ballot, can ever file a petition as a party for inclusion on a general election ballot.

NATIVE OF SCOTLAND

Lowson, a native of Forfar, Scotland, came to the United States in 1904. He has been a naturalized citizen since 1912 and a resident of Geoorgia since 1934, coming here from Washington, D. C., where he had been a certified public accountant for many years. He is a widower and has no children.

For 15 years, Lowson told a Constitution reporter, he has been advocating the Constitutional Party. It did not come into formal existence, however, until July 13 this year at Jeffersonville in Twiggs County when a convention was held and committee officers elected.

According to minutes of the party filed with Fortson, the CCP is open to all registered voters of the white race who signify a willingness to swear under oath a declaration of belief in the person and principles of Jesus Christ.

For Governor, Lowson; for Lieutenant Governor, Ray Willis, 53, of Macon; for Congress, First District, H. W. Shepard, "over 25," Belleville; Sixth District, John H. Heard, 28, of Forsyth; for State Assembly from Monroe County, T. R. Thigpen, 71, of Forsyth, and for Commissioner of Agriculture, H. O. Fulford, 56, of Macon.

Row Plunges Peace Parley Into Crisis

PARIS, Aug. 6—(UP)—The Paris Peace Conference was plunged into a confused and dangerous crisis Tuesday night over Russian insistence that decisions must be reached by a two-thirds majority.

Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, angrily denouncing Russian Foreign Minister Viacheslav Molotov for questioning his good faith, accused the Russian of trying to frame the Conference voting and all but called him a liar.

Byrnes challenged Molotov to publish in Moscow newspapers his attack on Russian tactics so that the Russian people themselves could read—the American side of an international dispute.

Molotov accepted this challenge, accused Byrnes of trying to dictate to the Conference, threatened to repudiate decisions previously reached by the Big Four Foreign Ministers on the ground that Byrnes had already done so, and said portentously that the whole fate of the Peace Conference might hinge on the two-thirds rule.

Molotov then sent the Conference into a decisive fight by demanding the flat two-thirds voting rule.

Yugoslavia, supporting Russia in its role of Eastern bloc satellite, intensified the crisis by announcing that it would not be bound by any Conference decision which was reached by less than a two-thirds majority.

'NEED NEW MEDICINE'

Rip Off Economic Bondage Of 30's, Editor Graves Says

By CLARK HOWELL, JR.

Viewing the South and its 30 million people as the greatest potential market in the Western Hemisphere, John Temple Graves, Associate Editor of the Birmingham Post, and widely known Southern orator and writer, yesterday allowed it was high time to rip away the economic bandages applied during the sickly thirties and give the Southern states a chance to stand on their own feet.

"The South was sick during the '30s and we needed medicine," the Southern editor said at the Atlanta Kiwanis Club yesterday, "but you can't go on with the same medicine forever. The bicarbonate of soda treatment of the New Deal is destroying the lining of our economic stomach of the '40s."

John Temple Graves

Introduced to the club by Gov. Arnall, Graves declared "there is a new light of liberalism dawning in our midst. We have come to a time when we can go ahead by only taking a chance, but we have forgotten how. Everybody has forgotten; labor, capital and the great group of us in between. We look for security in vain," he said.

LISTS SEVEN CHANCES

Basing his hope for a healthy, prosperous South on "seven chances we have got to take," Graves said, "We have got to take a chance on all the money we have made. There's more money in Southern banks today than ever in our history. We've got it right here and don't need Northern capital. We've got to take a chance on our own money.

"Second," he said, "we've got to take a chance on old King Cotton by giving it a chance to stand without artificial aid.

"We've got to capitalize on the advancement of science," he said. "We've got to take a chance on Uncle Sam, keeping an eye on him to prevent his interference in problems he can't handle down here, but at the same time taking advantage of Federal aid, especially in education.

CHANCE ON GOP

"We've got to take a chance on the Republican Party," he said. "The thought of voting the Republican ticket is loneliness and abomination to me, but we must have the benefit of a competitive two-party system in the South.

"And we have got to take a chance on the Southern Negro, because he makes up a part of us, because of his proximity and because it is the Christian, decent thing to do," Graves said. "We have got to let him advance in every way possible on his side of a reasserted segregation line, knowing full well that the Negro problem in the South can never be settled in terms of the Negro problem in the North.

"Take these seven chances and we can come out of this postwar melee with the brightest economic situation in America," Graves concluded.

New VA Hospital To Be Ready for Patients Sept. 1

The Veterans' Administration's new 750-bed hospital at the site of the former Lawson General Hospital will probably be ready to receive its first patients Sept. 1, Dr. Frank B. Brewer, Southeastern Medical Director of the VA, has announced.

The new VA hospital will be known officially as Lawson Veterans' Administration Hospital, Dr. Brewer said. He stressed the fact that Hospital 48 on Peachtree Road will remain open as a convalescent hospital to be operated in conjunction with Lawson.

Staffing of the new hospital will begin as soon as the property is officially turned over to the VA. That should be in the near future, Dr. Brewer pointed out, since President Truman last week approved the project.

A skeleton medical staff to operate the hospital will be obtained by splitting the present medical staff at Hospital 48 and reassigning the chief personnel to Lawson.

The Lawson site will be used by the VA pending completion of arrangements for a permanent hospital in the Atlanta area.

Googe Wants U. S. Action To Prevent Strikes

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 6—(AP)—George L. Googe, of Atlanta, top American Federation of Labor official in the South, said Tuesday night "we believe the Federal Government should take steps to prevent strikes by establishing a well-equipped Department of Labor headed by persons who understand labor and its problems."

Googe, in a statement issued to the press after the close of a two-day meeting of the AFL Southern Policy Board, also said:

"We charge that the entire living cost rise is directly attributable to a handful of CIO leaders who forced a break in the price ceilings last February."

Never Conspired, SaysACL on Rates

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—(AP)—Roscoe J. Doss, of Wilmington, N. C., Vice President in charge of traffic of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, said Tuesday his Company had never conspired with anyone to fix non-competitive freight rates by economc coercion.

Testifying in behalf of the railroads before Supreme Court Special Master Lloyd K. Garrison in the suit of the State of Georgia against Southern and East carriers on a charge of freight rates discrimination, Doss added:

"Railroad rate conference procedures constitute a process of evolution in which freight rate structures have come to meet the changing needs of trade and commerce.

"The rate structure of this country has become so complicated and so closely inter-related that any disturbance or disruption thereof is conducive to trouble for both the carriers and the shippers."

His company, Doss continued, has done its best to promote agricultural and industrial development of the territory along its lines.

What Do the People Want?

Congressmen of the nation are now at home giving an ear to their constituents.

At first it will be the friends, the campaign managers and closest supporters, the persons who "count" on election days.

Later they will see others, business men and farmers.

They will find the country is tired.

Almost everyone is tired today. That is a hangover from the war and the conditions of shortage and strain which since have prevailed.

The people themselves are confused.

Therefore, they are tired of confusion.

But, the country is most tired of what it regards as confusion in Washington. It is tired of pressure groups and, since the labor pressure groups seemingly have been the most successful politically, it is most tired of them. The astute leaders of labor groups know this and there will be few major strikes before the November elections.

The people are tired of what they regard as abuses of collective bargaining.

Thus, the presidential veto of the Case Bill, which was not a sound bill, the provisions of which would not have applied to any of the great strikes of its day, caused a great wave of public resentment. This resentment was caused by the fact the people, and many Congressmen, felt that the problems of collective bargaining should be put on a fairer basis than the one in which politics, not equitable decisions, too often had the strongest influence.

The people are a little bit afraid, too.

They want the end of war to produce a feeling of security. It has not. They will expect the Congress to enable the State Department to have a sound, continuing policy, uninterrupted by Congressional sniping.

They will want some measures designed to prevent, if possible, the "inevitable depression" about which there are so many sure soothsayers.

These are some of the things the people will want.

How strongly they will express it at the polls in November will give us a real indication of what they will express in 1948.

It Was Four Years Ago---

It doesn't seem so long ago as four years.

But it was.

Despair sat on the shoulders of the nation, a huge old man of the Sea of Despondency, growing heavier by the hour.

Everywhere the enemy was on the march. In Europe he was hammering away with the world seemingly about to fall into his hands.

In the Pacific the flood of Japan's might was unchecked. Australia braced herself to invasion. And there was not much with which to brace.

Then came the dawn of August 7, 1942.

The country was electrified by the news it got and hurried to take out old maps or open the old Atlas.

There was a Pacific island called "Guadalcanal."

The United States Marines had landed and were even then fighting on the beach.

They fought their way to the airfield, holding it against vastly superior Japanese forces. Other units fought their way against Japanese field positions. The Japanese brought up their ships off shore for artillery support.

That one airfield was, for many desperate days, the one slim hold the Allied world had in the Pacific. Because, even then, air power was recognized as the weapon that had to pave the way and be, too, the eyes and ears of the long road back.

There were few Marine planes. There were many Japanese craft.

The fighting went on for six long, hard, bitter months. The fighting went on day by day and night by night.

The Marines stayed in the lines longer than any other combat troops in history.

It was a hard, desperate job, getting the fulcrum under the weight of the Japanese. But they got it there and, slowly, the mass began to lift. The long march back had begun.

Today a grateful nation remembers all her dead and living with gratitude, but especially does she remember the First Divison Marines who opened the first door.

Mr. Byrnes and Mr. Molotov

Secretary of State James Byrnes has again confronted the Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov with an emphatic denial and a charge of seeking to wreck the peace conference at Paris.

Mr. Molotov came right back with as firm a statement.

This time there was a challenge involved—a challenge to print the charges in the Soviet newspapers. This Mr. Molotov accepted.

This does not make us happy. Nor does it cause us to be too unhappy. There is a sort of middle ground. The fact there is open argument means nothing is being hidden beneath the table or written on secret treaties. We like, too, the emphasis on newspapers and the value of news.

This peace conference is largely about Italy and the Balkans anyhow. Nothing concerning the Balkans can be done simply and without great argument. The Balkans had been so involved for centuries by the threads of courage, secret treaties, broken treaties, clan warfare, high hopes and corrupt governments that it will never be easy to resolve them.

But, Mr. Byrnes is standing firm. And if he and Mr. Molotov give the impression of an irresistible force meeting an immovable object, remember they had appeared so before.

At least the world knows what the argument is about.

This time it appears even the Russian people may know,

Peace treaties are rarely peaceful.

No Butter for Japs

Editor Constitution: The other day I read an article in The Constitution that burned me up. It told of the perplexed Japanese housewives trying to figure out what to do with butter.

Before I express my opinion let me give my thumbnail biography. I am 28, a former high school science teacher and basketball coach, a veteran of Bataan and the Death March. I was held prisoner by the Japs 41 months, the last 12 were spent in Japan. I am reporting to Fort Bragg, N. C., to be discharged after 63 months' service, 11 months of which have been spent in hospitals and convalescent furloughs as a direct result of what the Japs did to me.

I am not vindictive. I have been away from there long enough to have gained perspective. But it does seem to be a slap in the face to the few survivors of Bataan and Corregidor for our Government to send them butter after their multiple crimes against human decency. We earned three Presidential Unit Citations fighting Japs on a ration of 12 ounces of food a day, nine ounces of which was musty rice. One can of salmon was divided among 16 to 24 men as a day's ration of meat. We got more meat when a cavalry horse or mule was wounded. That was the slender ration we fought them on. We knew hunger before the concentration camps.

I favor fair but firm treatment for the Japs. Our Government should see that they have enough food to maintain life. They should not be given any luxuries. From Jan. 15, 1942, until Sept. 17, 1945, the only butter I tasted was some that I got in a Canadian Red Cross food parcel. The Japs didn't know butter, sugar, beef and other such foods during the war. They existed on rice, barley, soybeans and soybean flakes that had been processed to remove the oil, a little fish and the vegetables they were able to grow. This letter is in protest against butter or any luxuries for the Nips. I believe I speak for the 17,000 American boys who perished at their hands from the day of the capitulation of Bataan and Corregidor. Let the little Nip kids who used to line the road from my camp to the coal mine jeering at our skinny bodies and stumbly gaits, yelling "Bento scoshi, shigoto toxon, yoroshii (small lunch, much work, good)" realize that they must pay for those insults. The Japs aren't all ——— and ——— ———, but I think they have a dubious ancestry.

Let us bombard our Congressmen with this slogan: "No fine foods for the enemy." After all, officially we are still at war with them. SGT. NORMAN TANT.

(Editor's Note—We understand how you feel, Sergeant. They tell us the butter is some of a large amount sent for an expected large occupation force and will not stand shipment home.)

Tokyo Superior to Atlanta

Editor Constitution: I am a student of a Signal Corps School here in Tokyo. Up until the time I entered the Army my travels were confined to the Southeast and therefore I obtained knowledge about the other sections of the country only through books.

It's generally believed in the various sections of the country, principally the East, that the South is backward in every respect. As in the "War Between the States," we Southern boys are greatly outnumbered and needless to say these Yankees don't overlook a chance to drive home what a cultural and industrial section they come from. Knowing less than nothing about industry and assuming that Atlanta has its share, my topic will concern culture.

Last Sunday it was my pleasure to attend a concert in Tokyo given by the Nippon Philharmonic Orchestra. Even after 14 years of war they, in less than a year after V-J Day, have mustered an orchestra capable of giving a concert comparable to many heard in the States. The disgusting thing about it is, Atlanta, a city ready to take its place among the great, can't compare insofar as culture, musically speaking, is concerned with a city that has been the objective of bombing and foreign occupation.

Why can't Atlanta have a symphony orchestra and a civic opera house and an art museum that would attract lovers of arts? It's time Atlanta stop being compelled to bring in outsiders.

Hebron Has A Fine Sound to It

We went to Hebron Church.

It is about 12 miles out from Commerce, Ga. There has been a Presbyterian Church there in the pleasant grove of water oaks for 150 years.

Hebron was a great name with people wanting to found a city or a church. Last Spring I stopped for an hour in Hebron in the Holy Land, seeing the market and the old streets of it, with Jew and Arab busy at their shops.

It is in the hill country of Judah, about 20 miles from Jerusalem and a little less from Beersheba. Abraham dwelt there. Sarah was buried there. Isaac and Jacob made it their home. For a time great King David made it his capital before the taking of Jerusalem.

After the death of Saul, when David had returned from the slaughter of the Amalekites—

"And it came to pass after this, that David inquired of the Lord, saying, 'Shall I go up into any of the cities of Judah?' And the Lord said, 'Go up.' And David said, 'Whither shall I go?' And the Lord said, 'Unto Hebron.'"

It had a good, fine sound in the ears of the peoples who came to a new land to find land and to build churches and to become Americans. And so today there are many, many churches and towns in the old settlers' places by the name of Hebron.

So, it was not strange this old corner of Georgia should have a Hebron community and church. It was in 1796 that a stern Calvinist named John Newton came into the new Franklin County. It had been acquired from the Indians from a line on the Tugaloo River across Currahee Mountain down to the Oconee and a junction with the Creek nation. John Newton was going about, visiting the cabins, baptizing children, marrying a few of the blushing frontier youngsters.

They put up a church of logs and they called it Hebron.

That was 1796.

150 Years So, there we were Sunday, 150 years after the first church went up. There was a fine crowd of people, many of them with the strong, fine Presbyterian faces which the Scottish and Irish and Welsh peoples brought to this country.

I remember an old Presbyterian preacher who spoke out of many years to say, "You can always tell the real Presbyterians. They have fine, plain Scottish faces that reflect the highlands." You could see some of those faces there Sunday.

There was a burying ground by the church. There were old stones there marking soldiers of the Revolutionary War. There were old stones with the crudely-cut misspelled words, but all of them having a dignity of a good death.

There were the graves of children and in the lines cut on their stones one could read the agony in the hearts of parents who had watched a child die.

Young people romped about the burying ground, awaiting dinner. Older people walked about, recalling the words and faces of persons long dead, talking contentedly, with a rare and simple faith, of their own going out from the world to a resting place there below the red earth, there to await the last trumpet.

Old Days I liked best talking to some of the very old persons there whose memories stretched back to the days when the sermons were three and four hours long; when there was plenty of hell fire and brimstone and eternal damnation thundered from the pulpit and sinners shivered in their Sunday clothes; when there were great and long pronunciations on doctrine of baptism and sacrament.

It was solemn and long and there must have been times when it was dull and the congregation, especially the young ones, twisted restlessly in their seats. But to the older person those were the days when church and religion had fire and substance to it.

To define God is to limit Him. And each generation of ministers seeks to interpret Him in a way the people will know. Some do it well in a brisk 20-minute sermon Some fumble awkwardly in a full hour of trying. Each is trying to express his own idea of God. The stern old men of the pioneer days had something. It is too bad they didn't cut records in those days so we could play them and hear the words fling out, hard and unrelenting and exhorting.

It was a fine day, full of sunshine and reunion and laughter and worship and song. The seasons roll on and those who cling now to life, recalling the old days, will be there beneath the earth when the generation of 50 years from now goes to Hebron to worship.

People will always go to Hebron—the city of Abraham, of David and, best of all, the city of refuge.

Wonderful Scenery Just Around Home

They came visiting unexpectedly, on Sunday evening. About 8:30 p. m., by the clock

"Started out to take a little drive about 4 o'clock," they explained. "Never thought of coming anywhere near here, but we just drove around and finally found ourselves in this neighborhood."

Then they told how they had followed some roads in North Fulton County they had never followed before. How they drove wherever the road led, sometimes turning corners from one highway to another. Told of the many beautiful homes they had seen and the entrancing scenery.

They had gotten lost and continued driving, confident they would, eventually, come to some place they knew. They had. They drove into Doraville.

From there they had driven beyond Avondale to see a new home recently purchased by a friend. Then into Decatur and the call upon us.

They were full of enthusiasm about the alluring, winding roads they had followed in Fulton and DeKalb Counties. Of the real beauty of the countryside and of the pretty, smart homes.

"Really," said one, "it isn't necessary to leave our home counties to enjoy the loveliness of the Georgia countryside."

We agreed.

New Routes All of us use over and over again the same routes when we set out to drive to a given destination. Lovely, many of them, but unnoticed because of familiarity.

It's a good idea sometimes to try to find a new route. But do it when you're not in a hurry.

We drive, frequently, from home to the home of a daughter and her family, a distance of about a dozen miles. The route we always follow is very attractive and it is the shortest. A couple of months ago, though, setting out one Sunday afternoon, instead of taking the customary turning at one point we followed the straight road, knowing we were moving in the right general direction.

We, too, got lost in North Fulton County. We drove and drove. We'd almost lose the sense of direction on some of the winding roads. We'd come to a dead-end road and get out as best we could. We spent an extra hour driving thus, until at last we came out on a highway we knew. We were surprised at the number of the really lovely homes we saw on those roads, new to us.

We were entranced, sometimes, at the aboreal beauty of the winding roads, the little bridges, the glimpses of smooth lawns and the inviting dusk of the shadowy woodlands.

"It isn't necessary to leave our home counties to enjoy the loveliness of the Georgia countryside."

Re-Visiting There are quiet, little-traveled roads we used to know in prewar days. Now we can go driving with no object save pleasure, we are renewing old friendships with some of these rambling routes.

We rolled easily, the other evening, down Briarcliff Road, leaving the Emory section. We passed quiet little homes and bigger places. We saw well-kept, attractive dairies and farms. We passed a smooth, calm lake. Each curve of the road brought new vista.

Until we came to Tucker Road, just at the WSB radio substation. Then turning toward home, into Clairmont Road and so back to Decatur.

We have re-explored other roads we used to know and we have found new ones we never traveled before. And it is all so pleasant, so lovely and so good we wonder sometimes why we ever drive hundreds of miles seeking scenery.

The White Pines A friend recently made her first trip into the North Georgia mountains. She wrote on her return:

"When we were up at Clayton, we climbed a mountain in Nantahala Park to see the White Pine Plantation. It's perfectly beautiful and gives the impression of standing in one of George Inness' paintings . . . I thought of these words as I stood there:

"'Oh, the White Pines grow so tall they stand
With branches 'gainst the sky;
They surely, then, can feel His hand,
When God is passing by.
Softly, lovely secrets they whisper all the day
To all the little forest folk who in their shadow play:
If ever God should need a home, or wish to rest a while,
He'd find the warmest welcome there, I know. I've seen them smile.' —JEAN BRIGHT."

Golden Wedding Celebration

ERNEST K. LINDLEY

U.S. Production And the Peace

In his talk at the dinner celebrating the 39th anniversary of the Army Air Forces, President Truman said that he wanted the American production machine to become as great a force in winning the peace as it was in winning the war. This is a favorite theme of his. The statistics on American wartime production are comforting and encouraging to anyone who thinks about the future of the United States. They prove what we can do. Production on a comparable scale translated to the needs of peace would make possible an average standard of living higher than we knew before the war and higher than many people considered attainable in the near future.

Production sustained at a high level will help to solve many domestic problems which are now worrisome. It will take the edge off the danger of inflation. Combined with adequate taxes, it will produce enough revenue to keep the Federal budget in the black and reduce the Federal debt.

But in speaking of American production as a force in winning the peace, Mr. Truman was looking also beyond our own borders. A large part of the world is linked to our own economy, and we are trying to extend these links. We speak of a "free" world economy. Such an economy will, for some time to come, rise or drop with the American economy, because our industrial capacity comprises so large a part of the world's total.

GENERAL prosperity is a good preventive for revolutionary agitation. High sustained peacetime prosperity in the United States will increase our prestige. If we manage our trade and finance so that other countries also enjoy a rising standard of living, they will be less inclined to try radically different economic and social patterns and to look elsewhere for leadership.

The Soviet Union is trying to rivet its hold on eastern Europe by various economic and financial devices, including bilateral trade agreements. It is reaching toward the Scandinavian States—Sweden and Denmark—so far with proposals to buy on credit large quantities of manufactured and special agricultural commodities. The Soviet Union may not succeed in tying the economics of smaller nations in western and northern Europe to its own economy. But it already has a grip on the areas which the Red Army occupies and is resisting the efforts of the Western democracies to restore what used to be regarded as normal commercial relations between that part of Europe and the rest of the world.

Whether these nations can restore the standard of living which they previously knew, under Soviet aegis, is an open question. The Russians have removed large quantities of goods and machinery from some of the former Axis satellites. Russian occupation troops have lived off the country to a very great extent.

PERHAPS it is the Russian intention to keep these countries in permanent poverty. It would seem reasonable, however, that in any country in which the Russians succeed in establishing firmly a Communist regime, the policy would be to try to raise the standard of living.

In either case, a higher and rising standard of living in other parts of Europe and the United States should make it more difficult for the Russians to incorporate eastern Europe and other areas adjoining the Soviet Union into the Communist empire.

The theme that American production can be a force in winning the peace is more than an after-dinner generality. High sustained production alone will not make the peace secure but it is indispensable if we are to get and hold the kind of peace we want.

Electoral College And County Unit

The first thing that occurred to Georgians when the county unit system was attacked in the Federal courts was the fact that the United States runs its own presidential elections by an electoral college, which is somewhat similar to the county unit system. In this electoral college, each State is allotted so many votes which it can cast for the President. Georgia now has 12 such electoral—or, if you please—unit votes. It used to have 14 electoral votes. New York State, of course, has many more electoral votes. Where Georgia has few electoral votes as compared with New York, the small rural county of Georgia doesn't have as many unit votes as does Fulton, with its large population.

Some political observers who are also lawyers say, however, that Georgia's county unit system is NOT like the electoral college. The electoral college membership is based entirely on population. The county unit system was arbitrarily set up on a broad view of population but without any fair proportionment. Under the electoral college plan, the nation is divided into congressional districts, and each State has at least one Congressman. These districts are established on a basis of population. Every 10 years the districts are reapportioned to keep abreast of the population changes. Thus, when Georgia lost population, it lost two congressional districts. And changes were made within Georgia, shifting some counties into other congressional districts to take care of the population requirements. Since the number of Congressmen has to remain the same, the two Congressmen which Georgia lost went to some State whose population increased.

Broadly, Georgia's county unit system is established on a population basis—but it offers no accuracy in so far as a sliding scale and fair proportionment is concerned. Georgia's law says that the eight counties with the largest population shall have six unit votes, and three Representatives in the Lower House. It says that the 30 counties with the next highest population shall have four unit votes, and two members of the House. And it says that all other counties shall have two unit votes and one House member. This offers a change in representation in that when a county in the lower bracket exceeds the population of one of those in the higher bracket, they exchange places. But the suit in the Federal court contends that it is undemocratic and unconstitutional for a county with less than 1,000 people to have one-third the voice in State affairs as does a county with 500,000 inhabitants. The suit claims it is unfair for one vote in a small rural county to equal 106 votes in Fulton County.

Revise Unit Plan? The county unit system which gives rural counties power in Georgia politics is deeply ingrained in many, if not most, Georgians, who do not want the big cities to control the State. The recent gubernatorial campaign heard many references to the Crump machine controlling Tennessee by popular vote. In a recent column, Editor Ralph McGill said that, however fair the county unit system might have been when it was established, its fairness had been impaired by a shifting of rural population to the cities during the past half century. He suggested that the county unit system could be improved by giving the big cities a greater voice in State government without robbing the country people of their vote—by adding a few units to Fulton County and other large counties, for instance.

Since the Federal electoral college is legal, and since it is based on population without robbing the small States of a voice in national affairs, Georgia might attempt to pattern its county unit system exactly along the lines of the electoral college. In other words, it might cast aside its present total of 410 unit votes, and its plan of allotting 121 counties the identical two unit votes, and begin on a new basis. Even the smallest populated county would have to have one Representative in the Legislature, just as even the smallest populated State has at least one Congressman. Instead of giving the smallest counties two unit votes to count for one Representative, however, they could make one unit vote county for one Representative.

The revised law could start by allocating one unit vote and one Representative to each county with, say, 10,000 inhabitants or less. It could scale upwards with, say, two votes and two Representatives for counties between the populations of 10,000 and 25,000. And this vote could be increased by population percentages until it hit Fulton—giving this big-city county more unit power and more Representatives than it has today.

What a Legislature! But this increase in Representatives for many counties would mean a big Legislature. To follow the electoral college plan in revising the county unit system would mean Georgia's House of Representatives would be nearly twice as large as it is today—and it is already much too large. It has 205 members today. To put such an electoral college plan into effect in Georgia without overcrowding the legislative chambers, Georgia probably would have to cut down on the number of counties.

BLESSED ASSURANCE

For which cause I also suffer these things: nevertheless I am not ashamed: for I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day.—2 Timothy 1:12.

Do you feel crowded when someone asks, "Are you a Christian?" It is an inquiry to make anyone reflect. But if we be sincere followers of the Master we should be able to answer spontaneously in the affirmative. Our achievements may seem meager indeed. We look at them and wonder if they are worthy to be mentioned. Back to the truth we come, truth revealed in Christ, that God's appraisement has to do more with our devotion to Him than with what we may be able to do for Him.

Mercifully receive us, O God our Father. Thou knowest the thougths and intents of our hearts. Thou knowest that we love Thee. From the secret wells of Thy grace may we draw refreshment for our needs, in the spirit of Christ.

Industry Resists CIO in South

WASHINGTON—The CIO is making itself felt in the South.

This does not mean that its organizing drive which began a few weeks ago has yet achieved any outstanding successes. In the political field its Political Action Committee has won some election victories and has been routed in other contests.

But the CIO has impressed itself upon the Southern scene. This is evident in the stir it has created, in the issue it has become in elections, perhaps most dramatically thus far in Tennessee, and in the resistance tactics which the bigger unorganized industries have adopted.

This ferment was noted by the writer on a recent three-week tour of the South. The reaction of the South, by and large, is described by one CIO official as:

"Well, here it is at last—let's make the best of it."

SUCCESSES so far have been in smaller plants, for which a number of contracts have been signed. No inroads have been made upon the bigger textile combinations such as Cannon in North Carolina, Bibb in Georgia, and Comer in Alabama. An enlightened paternalism has been a protective influence in some bigger industries.

But the necessary slow missionary work has started.

When the organizing drive was being planned there was a dispute within the CIO as to strategy. One view was that the campaign should concentrate first on the smaller plants as the easier job in which organizers, some of them new at the work, could gain experience. The other view, that both big and little plants should be tackled at the same time, prevailed.

The South is a fertile field for labor organization because of the low wage economy. Southern workers are friendly and receptive generally with the proper approach and when they understand the benefits of union organization. The CIO has been smart in providing the friendly approach by using native Southern organizers, which is also the best approach to Southern industry. Most of the 269 organizers now busy in 12 Southern States are natives.

WHEN Southern people live side by side with these CIO organizers, and find them their own kind, members of their churches, with their children going to the same schools, the alien atmosphere that labor's enemies try to create dissipates quickly.

Indicative of the value of such an approach, resentment was encountered among Southern CIO officials toward interference by Northern officials. This was expressed most often in statements out of New York about elections. The Southern leaders prefer to keep their campaigns, both political and organizing, strictly Southern, with announcements to come from the various Southern areas affected.

The belief also was expressed to this writer that perhaps CIO's participation in elections should not have been by open indorsement, which raises the target to plain view, but by working quietly on behalf of candidates who were friendly to labor's objectives. But there were arguments on the other side, too.

Counter tactics of various kinds are being employed by Southern industry.

IN GEORGIA, for example, CIO officials claimed there is evidence that the bigger unorganized textile manufacturers have formed a common front. They cite the prolongation of three strikes, one in Athens which has been going on for nearly a year; another in Atlanta which began in March, and a third in Griffin, which began in April and where, incidentally, a local judge has been most severe in sentences for alleged picket violations.

In Alabama techniques that have developed, according to CIO officials, are to fire three or four employes as soon as an organizing campaign begins in order to frighten other workers, and to try to encourage violence among workers by inciting them.

Another method widely used is to try to stir up racial feeling, to divide the white and black workers, by spreading the word among white workers that, if a plant is organized, Negroes will work side by side with them and get the same pay. This is effective among low-paid white workers.

Also there are agents at work here and there on behalf of the industrialists, which will be discussed tomorrow.

Some Changes In Tax Theories

NEW YORK—By a strange, subtle process, the American citizen has been placed in the position of taxpayer to Britain, Russia, Italy and many other countries, his wages, savings and estate subject to partial confiscation for the benefit of their people. The allowance that he may claim for the support of his own wife, children and other dependents is below the line of poverty and admittedly was not regarded by Congress as adequate for even the meanest existence. Beyond those deductions, the citizen must immediately begin to pay income taxes which then are subject to the demands of foreign nations.

He finds he is buying food for strangers beyond the seas before his own family is fed or clothed or housed and if he should insist on putting down a full, detailed, reasonable and provable account of the actual cost of supporting his own family, beyond the legal allowance and should claim a deduction of that figure, he would be faulted by Internal Revenue and compelled to pay a tax on that difference, plus interest starting at 6 percent.

On the other hand, even those amounts which are advanced to other countries in the guise of loans, bear, at most, only a nominal rate of interest, the effect being that our nation exacts a harsh rate from our own people while our opposite numbers in the debtor countries are either excused entirely or asked to pay only token interest.

AND, if the citizen of, say, Britain, through his government, defaults his payments, it is not even pretended that the creditors, meaning the Americans, shall have any means of attaching the earnings or property of those foreigners in their own lands. By contrast, if the American defaults his taxes, his government may proceed to sell him out, particularly if he has died, and collect the deficit and the 6 percent from the estate which he has tried to leave to carry on, after death, his moral obligation to his dependents, his wife, for instance. Except in a few western states, the federal income tax rejects the proposition that marriage is a material or economic as well as a spiritual partnership and holds that a wife's share of the husband's earnings is a gift, not a share. He may give her, at present, $3,000 a year free of taxes after an initial gift of $40,000, but, beyond that amount, must pay taxes applicable, in part, to the cost of social and political experiments outside the United States. But he must keep a record of his gifts to his wife and report them to Washington and should he fail to do so, upon his death these gifts will be regarded as part of her inheritance and will be taxed.

It is the habit of those who defend all this, to argue that $40,000 is an enormous amount and that a wife who has received $40,000 and, say $15,000 in annual gifts of $3,000 each, is rich. She may be rich by comparison with a widow with no money at all or $10,000, but the income on that $55,000 at 3 percent, would be only $1,650 a year, subject, incidentally, to income tax, and subject, also, to the risks of investment under a government which has made investment precarious. True, she might, and probably would, try to guess her own life expectancy and draw on her principal but that is a delicate problem of reckoning.

THE OLD popular theory of the purpose of taxation was that citizens supported their Government in return for services to them. Under the Roosevelt Government, propaganda changed this concept to the extent that many citizens now believed the primary and legitimate purpose was to sock the rich, and distribute their accumulations. Wealth, of itself, was condemned as somehow pernicious and a menace to the poor and the Government.

Among the novelties of the last few years is the proposal that persons who are unemployed by their own decision not to cross picket lines are entitled to pay from the National and State Governments. The amounts vary above a minimum of $16 a week but some unions seriously advocate a minimum of $25 a week for 26 weeks in one year. The possibilities are ramifications of this scheme are too many and complex for discussion here today but, at once it will be seen that private political organizations, paying no taxes themselves but collecting enormous treasuries through taxes, would call strikes to serve their ends and then would shift the burden of paying strike benefits, their own ancient responsibility, to the public treasury. The taxpayers would have no right to examine the reasons for the strike and say "this strike is unjustified and we will not pay unemployment benefits." Yet, in a family of four workers under one roof, made idle by an arbitrary and unjustified strike the income would be $100 a week from the Government, subject to no taxes, but payable by other families, not on strike, whose aggregate earnings were less.

THAT the American citizen ever would be called upon to pay taxes to support others who had deliberately chosen to be idle or were made idle by the snap decree of a Communist or underworld gang unioneer, certainly was no part of the pure theory of taxation.

The new war veterans are not long home and have not had time or the composure to study their probable future as taxpayers. But time and experience will show them that the bill for their "benefits" and the gifts of the United States to other nations eventually will come to them. They are of that age and they are so many that, as an age group, they will be responsible when the collector comes. Probably they will arrange extensions of the debt so as to pass most of it on to their children, but those who think that any present generation of elders will pay the bill are mistaken. We won't be here.

The Stories From Kitty Hawk

MANTEO, N. C.—There is an old telegraph operator named Alpheus Drinkwater here who possesses some manuscripts which it seems to me some school of journalism should have for preservation in its historic files. They are the half dozen or so stories written by a young reporter named Bruce Salley—I guess he's dead now, or very old—about the flights of the Wright brothers at Kitty Hawk in the month of May, 1908.

They are, I think, the first eyewitness stories written about the Wright brothers and their flying machine, though they had made their first flights from the Kitty Hawk sands five years before, in 1903, when, with Wilbur at the controls, they had managed to get their strange device two feet off the ground and keep it there for a flight of some 150 feet before it nosed down to the sands again. And for three years before that, they had conducted "scientifc kite-flying experiments" with motorless glider craft, from this same spot, chosen because always across the Kitty Hawk sands a strong north wind blew steadily.

The thing that interested me mainly about the original copies of these historic stories was the feeling of excitement you could sense just by reading the old copy. You could tell that here was a good, honest reporter, yet a man with imagination, too, who had seen something which his mind told him was a new thing on the earth and destined to become something beyond man's wildest dreaming—and then you could see where he had XXXed out his flights into probabilities and come back to the bare facts of who was at the plane's controls, how far it flew, how long it stayed in the air, what course it flew, whether the engine got hot or not, and how the experimental landing gear stood up under the bumpy descents to earth. You could read beneath the Xs, and see the penciled-in changes, and understand how his mind was working against the excitement he must have felt. You could just hear him saying to himself, "I've got to stick just to what I saw. . . ."

Factual Therefore his first lead, and all of his leads after that, were simple, factual and straightforward, with no fancy writing in them, no flights of imagination. The first one read:

"Wright brothers, the aeronauts, now at Kill Devil Hill, near here, made a first flight in their new aeroplane this afternoon. Although but a test flight it was successful in every respect, the machine under the perfect control of its two makers traveling for a distance of 1,000 feet. It was made to light with ease and perfect safety."

He sent this story to his own paper, the Norfolk (Va.) Landmark, now defunct; to the New York Herald, the Washington Post, the Baltimore Sun, and the Cleveland Leader. He had queried many other papers, including the New York Times and World, Drinkwater remembers, but they had refused the story. And the Herald, though they took it, cut it to a couple of paragraphs and played it far back in the paper, giving it equal space and display alongside, strangely, a story of a lynching in Georgia.

They then sent Salley a curt telegram advising him to "confine himself to facts." The Cleveland Leader sent him a sharp-tongued admonition to "cut out the wildcat stuff," and refused to pay the one-quarter-cent-a-word press rate from Norfolk to Cleveland. (The charge from Manteo to Norfolk relay point over the Government Weather Bureau wire was 15 cents for one word or a thousand.)

Good Guy At the end of his next piece Mr. Salley sent equally sharp replies to the Herald and to Cleveland, saying that he was filing facts and if they didn't believe it come see for themselves. The Herald did send a man down. He saw what Salley had seen, filed his stories of the flight—and the Herald suspended him six weeks without pay.

In four days, though, the word seemed to get around that maybe something was happening here in this wild place beside the sea and newspapermen from all over were pouring in. With their coming, Drinkwater's troubles began. They would give him the Bible to send to hold the wire while they wrote their copy. The London Daily Mail man and a New York newspaperman threatened each other with mayhem in a squabble over the wire. But Salley seemed to be a smart cookie, though just a country boy compared to these slickers who were fresh from covering the Russo-Japanese War. He knew a little Morse himself. So he would beat them in and sit down at the wire and file his own story straight out of his head. Mr. Drinkwater let him, for Salley was a good guy, who played with the Drinkwater baby.

One thing in Salley's stories was a little surprising. The Wrights were affable, but they wouldn't talk to newspapermen about their plane, and they wouldn't allow the reporters to come near it. The newshawks had to lurk behind the dunes, or in the woods near Kill Devil Hill, writing only what they saw.

Later on, Salley did manage to get Wilbur Wright to answer one question. He asked him if he thought a plane could ever be built which would fly across the ocean. Wright said no, he didn't think so. Not until some other form of power than gasoline could be found.

Politics Is Not Dirty Business

One of the folk ways which most people in this country believe in implicitly is that politics is a dirty business. This is nonsense. Politics is no better and no worse than the people themselves. Politics is an indispensable ingredient in our self government. The quality of our government necessarily depends upon the quality of our politics.

The fact is that the only trouble with politics is that there isn't enough politics, or, more precisely, that not enough people take an interest in politics. I have always maintained that the people of this country have not only a right to take part in politics, they have a duty. As a matter of fact it is the obligation of the people to exercise their political rights in order to preserve their liberties for themselves and for posterity.

By this I do not mean that every man and every woman ought to run for Congress or for alderman. I do mean, however, that every man and every woman old enough to vote ought to make himself aware of the issues of the day and ought to vote in the elections.

IN THOSE years when Franklin D. Roosevelt was running for election, this country saw an outpouring of millions of voters who ordinarily never took the trouble to go to the polls. The march of these millions overwhelmed the reactionary elements of the country. In the years when Roosevelt was not running, many thousands of voters stayed away from the polls. As a result, while the reactionary elements grew no stronger, they elected more Congressmen.

In short, there never has been a swing to the right in recent years in this country, there has only been a hammock in which the progressive voter curled up and went to sleep while the reactionaries busied themselves about electing reactionary Congressmen.

How remiss the citizens of this country can be and have been in living up to their duty to vote can be gathered from statistics comparing the voting record of the United States with those of other countries. In Italy, when the referendum on the continuance of the monarchy was held in June, some 89 percent of the eligible voters went to the polls, while in the last National election in the United States only a little more than half of those eligible to vote did so. In the 1942 Congressional elections less than approximately a third of those old enough to vote went to the polls. This is in contrast with Great Britain, where three-quarters of the eligible voters cast their ballots in the national election, or with France, where 80 percent of those old enough to vote did so at the referendum on the constitution.

THE situation as to voting in the poll tax States could hardly be worse. However, the low percentage of those who take the trouble to vote in this country cannot be ascribed to this alone. Many of the great States of the North show a voter turnout of hardly more than 50 percent.

If the liberal forces of the country are to continue their onward and upward march, they must get out of their easy chairs and get out and vote. This is particularly important in the coming elections in the great industrial areas of the country. In New York, in Pennsylvania, in Illinois, and in Ohio, it is not the dependable reactionary vote that will lick the liberal candidates who are defeated. The stay-at-home vote will lick them.

CHANNING COPE

Livestock Picture Is Bright

Well, it seems pretty clear that a successful livestock pattern has finally been developed for Georgia and that all we now need is to adopt the pattern and get busy with cutting out the product itself. We now know beyond any question that all of the beef breeds and all of the dairy breeds can and will thrive in Georgia with proper treatment. That is, there is nothing inherent in our fundamental condition that makes it impossible to succeed with cattle projects. This is true, likewise, of sheep and hogs. Such deficiencies as we have can be overcome with present knowledge and available materials. For instance, the parasite problem is with us, both internal and external, but we have methods and remedies with which to solve it. Informed persons will think at once of Trol and DDT, both very recent additions to the list of aids available to farmers. There are many others.

"In the livestock business, too much feed is just about enough," says Dr. Milton Jarnagin, which is his way of reminding livestock men that feed is the most important factor in a livestock program. It is the limiting factor; there is no possibility of raising livestock without feed, and no way of producing livestock profitably without an abundance of cheap feed. Georgia now has a list of feed crops, which if grown in proper rotations, provides cheap feed throughout the year. Much of the feed can be gathered by the livestock, which is the cheapest method of feeding yet known.

A list of these crops reads like a "Who's Who in Successful Agronomy." Summer grasses include Bermuda, Dallis, carpet, Johnson, crab, sudan and others less known, but being tried out experimentally in Georgia. Two of the old grasses have been developed into better Georgia citizens by the experiment station at Tifton. These are the Coastal Bermuda and the Tift Sudan grasses. Along with these are the Summer legumes including Korean and Kobe lespedezas, serecea lespedeza and kudzu, cowpeas and soybeans. The millets, cattail and brown top, are additional auxiliary Summer grazing crops. For Spring grazing there are serecea lespedeza, bluegrass (if handled with care), rye grass, the small grains (the experiment stations are developing better varieties of oats, wheat, barley and rye, almost every year), crimson, manganese, hop, subterranean, ladino, and other clovers, and other legumes such as the vetches and peas. Alfalfa growing has recently been added to the list of practical feed crops.

This, due to recent discoveries made by the research institutions that alfalfa needs boron and potash. Fall grazing crops include well-fertilized Bermuda and Dallis grasses (nitrogen gives them longer life), kudzu (even after frost), serecea, and the clovers, and small grains which were planted on a well-fertilized and well-prepared seed bed in August. The Winter grazing crops include those planted on specially prepared seed beds, mentioned in the previous sentence, and the frosted kudzu (until gone) and such Winter grasses as bluegrass, ryegrass and Ky 31 fescue, under special conditions.

There are literally dozens of hay and silage crops among those listed above, and in addition there are other silage crops, not mentioned. Hegari and barley are coming into prominence as substitutes for corn. Wheat and oats yields are getting larger. And many Georgia farmers are learning to produce corn, economically, due to new and improved varieties and practices.

All in all, the livestock picture is bright. The pattern is drawn. We livestock growers need to become acquainted with the pattern, to adopt it, and then to get busy. We, ourselves, are our only limiting factors.

Crackers Beaten In Pair by Bears

By JACK TROY
Constitution Sports Editor

MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 6—The Mobile Bears, fighting hard for a place in the playoffs, handed the league-leading Atlanta Crackers a double defeat here Tuesday night by scores of 4-0 and 5-2.

Paul Minner turned in his 12th victory against seven defeats in the opener as he blanked the leaders on seven hits and struck out nine men in the seven-inning tilt. He was never in serious trouble. Ralph King was the winner in the second game as the Bears touched Shelby Kinney for three runs in the first inning and were never headed after that getaway.

Charles Mistos will go to the hill for the Crackers in Wednesday's third game of the series with Joe Smolko, Manager Al Todd's choice for the Bears.

It is a rarity for the leaders to drop a double bill and they must win both Wednesday and Thursday night's games here to square the four-game set.

The scoring:

FIRST GAME

Mobile moved into the lead with a run in the first inning. Thompson retired the leaf-off batter Lund, but walked Spears. Then Shuba singled and Matney doubled. Spears scored, Mueller struck out and Glock threw out Rochelli.

After Cieslak led off the second inning with a single Minner bore down and struck out Ellis, Benish and Hamner.

One of those inevitable Cracker errors helped the Bears score another run in the bottom half of the second. Nichols led off with a single. Cieslak had a chance to erase Nichols and maybe start a double play on Dapper's sharp grounder, but he threw the ball away at second. Nichols held up at third. Minner walked, loading the bases. Hamner fielded Lund's grounder and forced Nichols at home. Dapper scored on a close play at the plate after Spears flied to Ellis, who made a great throw which Ulisney bobbled just long enough to let the runner go safe.

A base on balls led to the third Mobile run in the fourth inning. Nichols walked and Dapper sacrificed. Minner grounded out but Land came through with a single in the clutch, sending Nichols home.

With two away in the fifth Ulisney singled and Collins batted for Thompson. However, Minner promptly fanned Collins, ex-Mobile star. Minner struck out seven Crackers through the fifth.

The Crackers had their best scoring chance in the sixth. Gearhart, first up, singled, and Cieslak beat out a roller to second with two out, advancing Gearhart to third. In the pinch Minner struck out Ellis. It was Minner's ninth strikeout.

Lochbaum walked leadoff Batter Nichols and the Bears scored their fourth run in the sixth. Nichols moved up on Dapper's sacrifice, as he had done in the fourth, and Lund, following Minner, who struck out, delivered a single to score Nichols. Benish made a remarkable diving stop of Spears' grounder to retire the side.

Benish led off the seventh with a double and Hamner followed with a short single to right. Minner then retired Ulisney, Pinch-hitter McGarity and Gearhart to end the game.

SECOND GAME

A Cracker error was the beginning of a three-run first inning for Mobile. Lund was safe when Hamner's throw pulled Benish off the first base bag. Spears drove Lund home with a double. Spears went to third and scored on successive passed balls. Shuba struck out but Matney doubled and romped home on Mueller's single.

In the second Ellis was safe on an infield hit and error, good for two bases, advanced to third on a wild pitch and scored as Benish flied to center.

A light rain fell as the Bears came to bat in the second.

Despite the fact that Shuba, who doubled in a lead-off role, was retired on a fielder's choice, the Bears managed to score a run in the third. Matney, who hit the fielder's choice, went to third on Mueller's single and crossed the plate as Rochelli forced Mueller.

Typical of Cracker luck this night was a play in the fourth. Cieslak led off with a single. Ellis hit a mighty drive to right center. Matney made a remarkable catch and doubled Cieslak off first.

Singles by Goodman, Ellis and Benish produced the second Cracker run in the sixth.

Lund's triple and Matney's single increased Mobile's lead to 5 to 2 in the seventh.

The Crackers scored their third run in the eighth. Ellis and Benish hit singles and Ellis tagged up on Hamner's fly to cross the plate.

Lever, Long Tilt Is Mat Headliner

Although the 10-round boxing match between Al Massey and Jimmy Coffield will be the big attraction on Promoter Paul Jones' combination boxing-wrestling program Friday night at the City Auditorium, the grappling bout featuring Dick Lever against Johnny Long is causing quite a bit of speculation among the fans.

Johnny, who is more or less on the small side as wrestlers go (weighing around 200 pounds), has been manhandling several of the big boys in his appearances here. This brought on an argument between Dick Lever and several of the fans. Dick contends that Long, a crack junior heavyweight, cannot pin a good heavy matman. After much wrangling he was able to land a match with Long, and it is in this match that Lever intends to prove his point. Lever tips the beams at better than 250.

Other matches on Friday's big program will find Nick Carter squaring off against Tom Mahoney, Daffy Don Lee meeting Bibber McCoy and Jack Hader tangling with Tiger Joe Marsh.

Max Lanier Going Back To Mexico

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Aug. 6 (AP)—Max Lanier, the erstwhile southpaw pitching ace of the St. Louis Cardinals, says he has no intention of following the example of Mickey Owen and jumping the Mexican League.

In St. Petersburg for treatment of an ailing elbow on his pitching arm, Lanier said "They have treated me just as well, even a little better than they promised."

He expressed surprise on being informed that Owen had returned to the United States and would apply for reinstatement in organized baseball so that he could rejoin the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"The club was going good and had won four in a row when I left," Lanier said. "Why, Owen batted about .700 himself in those games."

Lanier said he thought Owen might obtain reinstatement more easily than other players like himself who jumped to the Mexican League after signing contracts with major league clubs.

"We are under suspension in the majors for jumping our contracts," he pointed out, "but Owen had just been released from the service and had not been reinstated from the inactive list when he went to Mexico.

"Of course, they might suspend him for playing with us (referring to players who went to the Mexican League after signing contracts for the current season with big league clubs)."

"They paid me a bonus for going to Mexico and have paid my entire salary for the season," he said. "In addition they provide my living expenses and I have quarters in a hotel in Mexico City comparable with the hotel in New York in which the Cardinals stay while there. And next year I'm to receive my salary for the entire season before leaving the United States and reporting in Mexico."

The ex-Redbird pitcher has a record of six games won and one lost in the Mexican League and says he has pitched as effectively as he did in his first six starts for St. Louis.

"Except for the ball parks, which do not have clubhouses, making it necessary to dress in our hotels, conditions for the players are just about as good as in this country.

Mrs. GradyMcDonald Wins AWGA Tourney

Mrs. Grady McDonald, who has been scoring constantly in the middle 80s during the last few weeks, captured low gross honors in the weekly Atlanta Women's Golf Association tourney yesterday at the Druid Hills Golf Club. She registered an 86.

Low net prize in Class A was split between Miss Jane Sharkey and Mrs. Larry Martin, when they tied with 77s.

In class B competition, Mrs. L. M. Kelley had a gross score of 96 and Mrs. Weideman a low net mark of 69.

Next week's play is scheduled for Tuesday at Brookhaven Country Club.

ALL IN THE GAME
JACK TROY

Competition for Baseball MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 6—In the same waters where Adm. Farragut's immortal expression, "Damn the torpedoes," was born, fighting silver king explode at the end of the fishing lines of eager entrants in Mobile's first deep-sea piscatorial rodeo since World War II.

Fishing usually is reward enough in itself for the confirmed Izaak Walton. But catching fish for prizes is all that and heaven, too. It's page one stuff in Mobile, for the waters around Dauphin Island are jammed with contestants from all parts of the country.

There was no one at the baseball park to tell callers that the first game with Atlanta had been postponed late Monday. Presumably everybody had gone fishing.

It's a fact that, while Mobile is fighting to finish in the first division of the Southern League and earn a spot in the play-offs, there is not much talk of baseball at this time.

For instance, two men may be talking on a street corner.

"How do we stand?" one man asks the other.

"Well, not so bad. A mackerel, a bluefish and a cavalla may put us in the money."

We have heard only one street corner group discussing baseball. They were saying that one of the reasons why the Crackers are so tough is that they win many of their games in the last inning. They play on the theory that a game's never over until the last man is out.

The Mobile Bears are drawing well at the gate this season, but it's a fact that baseball in these parts has run second to fishing since Bert Niehoff won the last pennant in 1922. The franchise was shifted to Knoxville in 1932 and was returned here in the last half of the 1944 season.

But it will take a winner to get the Bears in the class of the fighting tarpon. The latter is front page news.

Niehaus Missed The Crackers had planned on having a "ringer" in the big fishing rodeo. Trainer Dick Niehaus, who gained much of his early baseball fame as a pitcher in Mobile, is the club's ace fisherman. But illness kept the doctor from making the trip. It was a big disappointment to the players, who figured Niehaus will be good for the winning mackerel, at least.

We still haven't found the park where Niehaus claims a monument was erected in his honor, but it's a fact that many people have inquired about him.

Manager Ki Ki Cuyler sent Niehaus the following wire—

"The lady who rode 20 miles on a mule is still waiting to see you pitch."

There is a famous story they tell about Niehaus and his playing days in Mobile.

It's about the time he filled in as an outfielder late one murky afternoon. A long ball was hit in his direction. Niehaus was off at the crack of the bat. Back, back, back to the fence he raced, only to see the white object disappear from sight. The ball dropped many feet away from him.

In the dim light he had chased a seagull to the fence.

Niehaus claims this is strictly a libel, but he won't deny that the monument was erected to his skill as a fisherman, and not as a participant in the great national pastime.

The players are pulling for Niehaus to be up and about by the time they clinch the pennant. No celebration would be complete without the doctor.

Enough Seats at Tulane New Orleans is one town where no fever of football interest is felt. And there is no rush to obtain tickets for the games of Tulane and Louisiana State University, Alabama and Auburn.

There is local interest, of course, but no shortage of seats for games in Tulane's stadium or at Baton Rouge. Those who haven't already got their tickets for the games Alabama plays in Birmingham have dismissed the matter. There are still tickets available for most of Auburn's games.

Bill Keefe makes a point about the leisurely request for Tulane tickets. The sports editor of the Times-Picayune writes—

"I wonder what sort of rush there would have been in New Orleans to buy tickets for the Tulane-Alabama game or the game with Notre Dame. They know that although 40,000 tickets already have been sold for the Alabama tilt there are nearly that many more available. And knowing a big rush isn't needed, they take their time about buying tickets.

"Just the same, Tulane most probably will show a bigger attendance for the Alabama and Notre Dame games, combined, than some of the SEC teams will draw for their home schedules all season."

He's right, of course. But it's a mistaken belief to think that Birmingham, Knoxville, Tuscaloosa, Atlanta and any other Southeastern Conference towns are bragging because they've sold out the popular games next Fall.

Lack of seats and lack of material to increase stadium capacity is really a big headache to the schools. Refunds run into big money.

It's quite likely that Tulane's drawing power could be equaled by any of the other schools if the stadiums could hold the customers.

Blue Point, Famed Jumper, In Adams Park Show Friday

A string of 10 top hunters and jumpers from the Infantry School Stables at Fort Benning, Ga., will arrive in Atlanta Thursday morning to compete in the Adams Park Horse Show to be held Aug. 9, 10 and 11, according to information I. C. Milner, Chairman of the Adams Park Horse Show Association, received from Lt. Col. Jake Moon, Stable Commander.

Lt. Col. Moon states this will mark the initial public appearance of the Horse Show Team from Ft. Benning since the outbreak of the war in 1941. This stable, one of the finest in the Army, and for years consistent exhibitors in Atlanta Horse Shows, has always provided keen competition throughout the Southeast.

Headline performer in the stable is the famed 20-year-old mare Blue Point, whose reputation for consistent winnings is well known throughout the country. The half-bred hunter and jumper has been out of competition, as has been the entire stable, during the war years, but preliminary work indicates that she will be in top form for the Adams Park Show. Blut Point will be entered in hunter and jumper events in most of the afternoon and evening sessions of the three-day show.

Other well-known mounts will include the three-quarter-herd chestnut gelding, Silent Partner, whose exhibitions of jumping a course without the benefit of a bridle are well remembered by Atlanta horse lovers.

Riders who will exhibit the Infantry School Horses include Lt. Col. Jake Moon, stable commander; Lt. Col. Frederick Weber, one-time representative of the United States Olympic jumping team; Lt. Col. Joseph R. Russ, well-known Army horseman, and Miss Madge Barclay, who will ride her private mount, a chestnut three-quarter-bred hunter, Tommy.

Reservations for tickets and box seats can be had through Mrs. E. C. Rae, Chairman of the Ticket Committee of the Association, 2182 Cascade Road, S. W., Atlanta, Telephone RAymond 8604.

Prep Grid Stars Play Tonight

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Climax of the seventh annual Georgia Athletic Coaches' Association clinic will come tonight when star-studded football teams representing the GIAA and the NGIC will clash at 8 o'clock at the Decatur High field.

Sid Scarborough's GIAA pack, stacked against possible defeat by a power-laden backfield and a star punter in End Scott Reynolds, former Boys High standout and until recently in the service, is composed chiefly of former Atlanta Boys High and Tech High stars. Lewis Woodruff's NGIC gang, featuring the backfielding of Eddie Roberts, ex-Decatur star, is powered principally by former Decatur and North Fulton players.

Former All-Southern Center Gene Chandler, of Tech High, spearheads the GIAA forewall which includes such aces as Wimpy Strickland, Johnny Jones, Jim Gullett, Harry Johnson and Scott Reynolds. Backed by such offensive gears as Porter Payne, Johnny Griffith, George Vlass and Harry Smith, the club is a natural to produce forward power from the single wing setup.

Harlan (Neighbor) Brown, a devastating center who is one of the best ever to don Decatur spangles, and Bo Pierce, the one-time "guard around" touchdown expert, are high spots in the NGIC line which also includes Buddy Amsler, Red Patton and Billy Carroll, three of Decatur's best of recent vintage.

Eddie Roberts, Jack Tiller, Jack Pierce and Johnny Ammons are a potent backfield quartet which can "tote the mail," and Jimmy Southard and James Partee will play "man down under" in the T-formation powered backfield. Southard perhaps is the best passer on either squad.

Alabama's Frank Thomas and South Carolina's Rex Enright will open the closing day's festivities with 9:30 and 10:45 a. m. lectures at the Ansley Hotel, and Georgia Tech's Bob Woodruff will demonstrate the fine points of line play at Rose Bowl Field at 3 p. m.

Tommy Reeder, Cliff McGaughey and Tom Slate were hosts at a brilliant fete for the coaches last night at Lakemoore, the annual party being a popular fixture with the more than 100 mentors who attend the clinic.

City Amateur Opens At East Lake Today

By BERT PRATHER

Atlanta's amateur golfers will converge on East Lake's famous No. 2 course early this morning and from then until late afternoon they will be scrapping with Old Man Par in the hope that their day's efforts will be good enough to land in the championship division, which as usual will be limited to the top 32 qualifiers.

Lyman R. Hunter, President of the Atlanta Golf Association, and Harold Sargent, the East Lake pro who will serve as starter throughout he five-day tournament, are confident that the field this year will exceed 100.

In today's qualifying, players may tee off any time between 8:30 a. m. and 3 p. m.

With the announcement that Danny Yates, the defending champion, and Tommy Barnes, Southeastern Open titlist, would not play in this year's renewal, most of the experts are now picking Gene Dahlbender, Jr., as the favorite to move into the throne room. Gene is a great medal player, but has not had too much success at match play. This may be his time to break the jinx. Dahlbender will represent the Druid Hills Golf Club along with Bob McCoy, the present Club champion; Fred Owen, and Gene Gaillard. Pete and Luke Barnes will be the chief hope of the host club of keeping the cup another year.

The annual business meeting of the Atlanta Golf Association will be held at 6:30 p. m. Thursday night at East Lake, it was announced last night by L. R. Hunter, President of the Association. All officers and directors are urged to be present.

Danny Yates plans to play in the Asheville, N. C., Invitational this weekend, while Tommy Barnes will be in Columbus for the big Southeastern Amateur.

Match play will open Thursday and continue through Sunday afternoon.

Local 199, Georgia Milk Upset in Amateur Play; 5 Games Slated Today

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Calvert, Scottdale, Villa Rica, Morton's Market, Arrow Shirts, Southside Motors and the Buckhead Elks moved into the second round of the annual city tournament of the Atlanta Amateur Baseball Federation yesterday with Scottdale upsetting seeded Local 199, 5-3, with a three-run rally in the ninth at Ponce de Leon Park, and Calvert nipping Georgia Milk in another upset, 7-6, at Glenn Field. Other results were as expected.

Only four games, exclusive of yesterday's rained-out fray, will be played today when Clarkdale and Yellow Cab will vie in the feature fray at 5 p. m. at Ponce de Leon Park. Post Office and Villa Rica clash at Glenn Field, Calvert and Whittier Mills at Fulton and Yellow Cab will vie in the game at Marietta.

Singles by Elam, Mize, Watson and Jack Henck, the latter knocking in the two winning runs, beat Local 199 for Scottdale in the ninth frame.

George Hudson's creditable twirling won for Calvert as Georgia Milk tried to save its ace flinger, J. B. Lazenby, for the next day.

Those two surprises of yesterday and Brookhaven Post 65's 7-5 win over strong Colinial Stores the day before were the only first-round upsets in the single elimniation tournament.

Hughson Blanks A's On 5 Hits

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Yielding but five hits, all singles, Tex Tughson won his 12th game of the season Tuesday for the Boston Red Sox who vanquished the eighth-place Philadelphia Athletics, 5-0.

Four runs in the seventh inning game the New York Giants a 5-2 edge over Brooklyn Tuesday night, clipping the Dodgers' lead over the idle St. Louis Cardinals to an even two games.

With Claude Passeau pitching four-hit ball, the Chicago Cubs scored a pair of runs in a hectic third inning and then went on to shut out the Cincinnati Reds, 3-0, before 27,396 paying fans at Cincinnati.

The Chicago White Sox defeated the Cleveland Indians, 11 to 1, on a barrage of 16 hits which accounted for a nine-run fifth inning, sending two Indians' pitchers to the showers.

The Boston Braves won a 12-inning thriller from the Philadelphia Phillies, 3 to 1, by putting three hits together in the 12th for the decisive two runs, after the Phils, outhitting the Braves by 10 to 5, tied it up with a run in the ninth of the night game.

Two unearned runs on three St. Louis Browns' errors assisted the Detroit Tigers to a 3-1 victory in the opener of a two-game series at St. Louis.

Feds Defeat Colonial As Fishpeddler Stars

Slick Helms racked up his sixth shutout of the season for the Federal Prison team by blanking Colonial Stores, 3-0, at Bennett Field. It was his thirteenth win in 16 starts, and the Feds' eighteenth in 23 games this year. The vaunted speed of the Feds' slugging centerfielder, Fishpeddler Rivera, accounted for two of the Fed tallies. In the eighth inning he singled sharply to left for his third hit of the game, promptly stole second, then went all the way home on an easy roller to first base by Eklund, catching the visitors completely flat-footed.

MIDGET RACES TO RUN ON MILE TRACK

The 50-mile national championship midget car race at Lakewood Park Sunday afternoon will be run on the mile track, Director Bob Sall emphasized last night.

Popular opinion had the little racers operating on the fifth-mile track that previously has been used by the midgets, but this is not true. "We'll make 50 miles of the mile track Sunday," he said, "and pit stops for tire changes and more fuel just as the big cars do."

Time trials will start at 1:30 p. m., with the first event slated for 3 o'clock. There will be two heats as well as a consolation heat before the 50-mile feature at 4 p. m.

The program is being staged under the sanction of the Central States Racing Association, governing body of the midgets, and carries a guaranteed prize of $2,500.

Jackets Edge Georgia, 2-1

By JIMMY WALL

Lefty Sconyers, Georgia's fast portsider, weakened for one brief inning yesterday, but that was enough for Georgia Tech to tag his delivery for three hits and two runs and win the first baseball game between the two ancient rivals in four years, 2-1.

Sconyers tied up in a tight pitching battle with Frank Broyles, Tech ace, who notched his second win of the season, but his one disastrous inning, in which he walked two and gave up three singles, proved to be all Broyles needed. "Red" gave up only five scattered hits to pave the way for Tech's third straight win of the season.

Georgia couldn't touch Broyles until the fifth when Bagwell scored for the Bulldogs on Tommy Jordna's hard hit ball down to first. Wood, Tech first-sacker, booted the ball and Bagwell came across with the lone Bulldog tally. Tech scored their two runs in the second on singles by Wood, Williamson and Broyles, and poor fielding by the Bulldogs. Wood beat out a scratch hit to short, Jordan walked, and Williamson laid down a bunt to fill the bases. Wood then scored on a wild pitch by Sconyers and Luck was intentionally walked to fill the sacks again. But the strategy backfired when Chonko threw the ball away to second and Jordan came in with the winning run.

Tommy Jordan's brilliant fielding in left field was the shining light in the Bulldogs' lost cause. Jordan handled six Jacket knocks, one a beautiful catch in deep right that cut short an intended Tech rally in the first. Jack Williamson and Hugh Wood collected two hits apiece to lead the Jacket batting.

Tech goes to Athens Friday for the second game of the series, and the two teams will play again Wednesday in Athens. Next Friday Georgia returns to Atlanta for the final game.

S. Georgia Announces 10-Game Grid Schedule

DOUGLAS, Ga., Aug. 6—Coach Johnnie McMillan announces a tentative 10-game football schedule for South Georgia College, with plans calling for at least four home appearances of the South Georgia Tigers this fall. The schedule will open on Saturday night, Oct. 5, with St. Bernard's Junior College in Douglas.

73-Year-Old Will Drive In Hambletonian Today

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 7—(AP)—Eleven three-year-olds go to the post tomorrow in the 21st running of the trotting horse world series—The Hambletonian—in a race as wide open as the hole that's left after an atom bomb goes off.

The brand-new California immigrant, Chestertown, bought only a week ago for $40,000 by Walter E. Smith, of Los Angeles, in the fanciest financial trotting transaction in 35 years, was the "people's choice" among the cash customers who are expected to jam good-time track to near-record Hambletonian proportions of 25,000 to 30,000 by the time the first mile heat starts at 3 p. m. (EDT) on this kite-shaped racing strip.

But things being what they are among the three-year-olds this season—with no consistent standout to show his stuff yet this Summer—any one of three others might get to the paying teller's window first to pick up the $28,047.56 winner's bankroll.

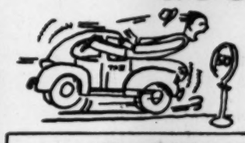

These are Westfield Girl, the $25,000 filly from the barn of E. J. Baker, of St. Charles, Ill.; Victory Song, highest priced yearling in trotting history at $37,000, carries the colors of Mrs. James B. Johnson, Jr., of Rochester, Mich., and last year's two-year-old champion, Deanna, daughter of the world champion filly Rosalind.

Driving Deanna, in a last-minute switch that had been rumored for 48 hours, will be 73-year-old Ben White, the Lexington, Ky., veteran who is practically Mr. Hambletonian himself, with four winning jobs of steering in this corn tassel classic. His son, Gibson, who owns the filly with Sonny Sheppard, of Hanover, Pa., bowed out in favor of father after the entries were closed today.

reinstated with organized baseball if possible.

"As far as I have been able to learn I was never put on a suspended list in the United States," he said.

He said he had not contacted either Branch Rickey or A. B. "Happy" Chandler, Baseball's High Commissioner.

"I believe I could still help the Dodgers win the National League pennant and I'd like to get a shot at the Boston Red Sox in the World Series this Fall," he said.

He said he did not think he had broken his Mexican League contract.

"I signed as playing manager of the Torreon Club," he explained. "When I arrived in Mexico, I was put on the Vera Cruz Blues."

"FIRED" BY TORREON CLUB

He said he had been "fired" as manager of the Torreon Club and he considered that cancelled his contract.

"New York is interested in knowing if you got any financial settlement since you reportedly got $12,500 cash bonus for signing with the Pasquels," he was told.

"You tell New York it ain't none of their business," he said promptly.

It was generally understood in Mexico City that Owen got a bonus when he signed with Pasquel, but it was never absolutely confirmed.

When Gerardo Pasquel first was notified Owen was in Brownsville, Pasquel said it was "impossible" for him to be in the United States.

He said Owen was in Mexico City Monday. He said Owen was not listed as an airline passenger, and that if he drove by car, he could not possibly have made it in that time.

"You're talking to me, ain't you?" was Owen's only comment to that. He said he preferred not to explain how he got from Mexico City to Brownsville.

DISLIKED WHOLE SETUP

He said he was dissatisfied "with the whole thing" in Mexico.

At first he said he wanted to get as far away from Mexico as possible — away from Mexican food and Mexican customs. Later he said he had had a good time down there and admitted Mexico "was okay," although "it ain't the United States."

"I figure I've given all I should give to the Mexican League," he said. "I don't owe them nothing."

He was physically exhausted when he arrived here. He spent the night at the palm-fringed El Jardin Hotel, and slept late. Then he went to the Brownsville Herald office and gave them his story, later talking to the Associated Press in Dallas by telephone.

He said he was going straight home to Springfield with no stopovers. He said he wanted to visit his folks. He said he didn't know what train he was going on or exactly when.

"My wife handled all that," he said.

He said he had not talked to Branch Rickey, but expressed deep interest at Rickey's comment in Brooklyn that he woudl help him out all he could."

Pesos Losing Shine, But League Goes Strong

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 6—(AP)—The shine is wearing off the pesos that brought a score of U. S. major league stars here to play baseball in the Mexican League but the league itself still is going strong.

Mickey Owen's jump back toward U. S. baseball apparently doesn't disturb the Pasquels, the five brothers who dominate the game in Mexico.

Owen's departure is the second jump from the league. Vern Stephens, St. Louis shortstop, played two games here and vanished. Whether others of the 25 major leaguers who played this year are sufficiently unhappy to leave is speculation.

Owen recently had a short, sharp fight on the field with Claro Duany, Cuban Negro, highlighting the presence of Negroes in the league and Owen's failure to include them among his comrades.

Originally the former Dodger was to have managed Torreon, but instead he was assigned to Vera Cruz and made manager when Ramon Bragana, Cuban Negro, was suspended for ordering Jorge Pasquel off the field. A month ago Owen was replaced as manager by Chile Gomez, a Mexican favorite.

Big salaries and bonuses attracted players here, but some have suffered from the altitude (7,500 feet), others from digestive troubles and not all like the mixture of races and nationalities.

Signing big name players packed the crowd into grandstands at prices generally above the U. S. average. Delta Park, an old stadium, was enlarged this year from 18,000 to nearly 30,000 capacity, counting the standing room. When Owen and others first appeared, the extra gate may have paid the players' salaries ofr months.

Baseball is played Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays. Saturday and Sunday are big days, frequently with all seats filled, but Fridays are light and Thursdays only fair.

HOUSING

the addition of rooms or stories to existing dwellings—is running well ahead of schedule, the Housing Expediter said, and the 50,000 goal for these was doubled. Also, 12,000 temporary units have been added to the scheduled 200,000 units of war housing to be dismantled, moved and re-erected this year.

Although the number of starts slumped in June, the number of home completions has increased steadily every month, Wyatt said. Of the 225,000 units finished, 153,000 are new permanent houses and apartments, the rest temporary dwellings, conversions and trailers. All but 40,000 of the permanent units were started in 1945.

"The total number of starts at the end of the first six months stood at 496,000 including 92,500 units started in June," the NHA Administrator said.

"Hopes of acceleration starts during June were not realized. Uncertainty as to the future of building costs, arising from the unsettled status of price controls, is believed to have limited the number of houses begun.

"Moreover, demand for building materials was increasing faster than production, and the number of priorities issued for veterans' housing was restricted during June."

The effort to break bottlenecks in the supply of building materials showed results, Wyatt said, in a gain of seven percent in brick output for June and, a five percent gain in clay sewer pipes, an all-time production record in asphalt roofing, and sustained high production of lumber.

On the other hand, plywood output dropped off in June, as did hardwood flooring.

Simultaneously with Wyatt's report, the Civilian Production Administration announced that homes built under the housing program must be held and publicly offered for sale for 60 days to veterans or members of the armed forces. This is an increase from 30 days.

Anti-Trust Suit Aimed At Insurance Firms

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—(AP)—The Federal Government filed a civil anti-trust suit against 37 insurance companies, savings banks and commercial banks Tuesday seeking an injunction to restrain them from allegedly conspiring to keep rents up and prevent new housing in some areas.

The suit asked dissolution of the Mortgage Conference of New York, a Wall Street firm which said in a statement that it was formed during the depression "to place the mortgage lending business in New York City on a more scientific basis for the good both of the lender and the borrower."

The 37 companies named individually were members of the Mortgage Conference, a Federal prosecutor said. The Savings Bank Trust Company of New York, wholly owned by savings banks, also was listed as a defendant in the action.

"They range from infants of a few weeks to 16-year-olds," Miss Zahner said. "They have either been deserted by one or both parents or taken from them and their need for normal, happy home life is great."

The welfare workers attributed the increase in dependent children in part to hasty wartime marriages, to broken homes and parental delinquency. They emphasized the fact that the need is not for adopted parents but stable, well-adjusted families who would be willing to board children for a small sum to give them a good start in life.

The agency now has 375 children, white and Negro, for whom it must find homes. Some of them may eventually be adopted, but none of the babies like Lil' Squirt may be placed for adoption until they are six months old. They must be boarded on a temporary basis. Others, those who are not adoptable, are boarded on a permanent basis and their care and training are supervised until they become self-supporting.

The case of two little sisters, Midge and Katy, and their little brother, Ted, is another marked "Urgent" in the department's file. The youngsters were abandoned by their father and taken from their mother by the Juvenile Court on moral grounds. For a couple of years they have boarded quite happily in a rural home but recently physicians found that because of an eye injury, when Ted starts to school this fall he is going to need the specialized attention available at only such schools as Faith in the Southeast section.

"We don't want to separate the children," Miss Zahner said. "They have only one another, no other family. But we must get Ted in a home in the Southeast section. If we could only find somebody who would take all three of them!"

Love and understanding of children are the minimum essentials in a boarding parent. The agency also asks that they be self-supporting, in good health, of high moral character and that they maintain a happy home. The home itself should be sanitary, comfortable and spacious.

If you can offer either a temporary or permanent home to any of the youngsters communicate with the Department of Public Welfare Children's Division, 160 Pryor St., S. W., or call Main 3215 and a worker will be glad to talk to you.

MEAD

He said he would leave it up to the Congressman's physician to decide whether he is well enough to take the witness stand next Friday.

That appeared almost certain to wash May out of the Senate's investigation, since his family doctor in Prestonsburg, Ky., has announced that the Congressman is in "critical" condition and may never be able to return to Washington.

PROBE A PRELIMINARY

Clark and Mead emphasized that the FBI inquiry into the Garsson combine is merely a preliminary to presentation of evidence before a Federal Grand Jury, and that thus far no criminal action has been proved against the syndicate.

FBI agents are at work on the inquiry, aided by a team of Justice Department lawyers headed by William A. Paisley, of the Criminal Division's War Frauds Section.

When the FBI investigation is completed, Clark said, he will decide whether the evidence warrants institution of Grand Jury proceedings against the combine and its leaders, headed by the brothers, Henry and Murray Garsson.

The Senate Committee, Clark said, has given the Justice Department its entire record of more than two months of hearings on the Garsson and related cases—hearings which unfolded a sordid story of defective munitions sent to the fighting fronts, multi-million dollar profiteering, and "favors" obtained by the munitions makers from high-placed friends in Washington.

SOLONS WASH HANDS

Mead told newsmen after a conference with Clark that the Senate group has washed its hands of the Garsson inquiry, except for the remote possibility of further examination of the ailing Rep. Andrew J. May, who had been named by Committee witnesses as the "guardian angel" of the combine and in Washington.

Mead said his Committee is sending subcommittees to Los Angeles, Calif., to look into alleged graft on construction of the Inter-American Highway; to Paris and Rome to investigate the disposal of surplus Government property, and to Hawaii to open an inquiry into Col. Theodore Wyman, who was Army District Engineer at Pearl Harbor when the Pacific War began in December, 1941.

MEAD ELATED

Mead was frankly elated by the FBI's decision to take over the Garsson case. He told reporters he "assumed" the Government agents would scrutinize all 16 firms in the Garsson combine, including the Cumberland Lumber Company in Kentucky, in which May allegedly held an interest.

Asked if the principal figures in the Garsson affair were being "shadowed," Mead shrugged his shoulders and replied that Clark "didn't say."

Clark told newsmen that the FBI agents had been ordered to make a thorough study of the munitions combine. He said the Justice Department is taking an active part in the Chicago Federal Court proceedings for appointment of a bankruptcy receiver for Batavia Metal Products Company, a top company with the syndicate.

The Department, he added, also hopes to protect the Government's interests in an overpayment of $1,000,000 made to the Garsson Companies as a result of an overstatement of terminal costs made by one of the firms.

All books and other records of the firms are being investigated by FBI men, and the tax records of all companies and individuals linked with the combine also are being scrutinized carefully, Clark and Mead disclosed.

Meanwhile, Sen. Glen Taylor, Democrat, Idaho, renewed his charges that former railroad men in Army uniform helped overcharge the Government for wartime freight shipments.

In a new request for the Mead Committee to investigate alleged war profiteering by the nation's railroads, Taylor said four of the five men on the War Department's standing Rate Committee had railway connections before the war and went back to railroad jobs when the war ended.

He identified them as Majs. Gordon R. Lyman, H. M. Heimbaugh, H. J. Carr and H. H. Johnson. All four, he said, were in a position to decide rates paid by the Government for freight shipments during the war.

SALLY FORTH Says:

Atlanta Visitor Develops Hobby Into Paying Trade

Brown-eyed and brown-haired Mrs. Jane Ross arrived Sunday from New York to visit Mrs. Leonard Stein at the Georgian Terrace. She is the talented artist who paints flowers and scenes in oils on plastic materials, which are sold all over the country. Mrs. Ross maintains her studio at 2039 Broadway, and her hobby has grown to such vast proportions that she keeps a staff of six men and women busy from morn until night.

The New York Art Student League is her alma mater. Eight years ago she painted field flowers on plastic mats to give to her personal friends. Her husband told her he believed he could sell her idea, so out he went into the New York field, and returned with more orders than one woman could possibly fill. From that beginning, Mrs. Ross has developed a business which includes hand-decorated breakfast and cocktail trays, table mats, coasters, tissue boxes, cigarette boxes and plaques.

When the Duke and Duchess of Windsor lived at Nassau, she painted a set of table mats for their yacht. Charles Boyer owns a set of round mats decorated in red roses, which he uses on the table set in the patio of his Hollywood residence. One of Mrs. Ross' breakfast trays is the property of Norma Shearer, and many other Hollywood celebrities own some of her exquisitely decorated items.

This is her first visit to Atlanta and Mrs. Ross is charmed with everything. Just before her train reached the city, it began to rain, and she remarked to a woman, traveling with her, that she was so sorry about the rain, as she wanted to see the sunny South. Her companion, just to be a bit facetious, said: "Don't you know the sun won't shine down South for a damyankee?" But old Sol broke through the clouds just as the train pulled into Brookwood Station, and attractive Mrs. Ross saw her wish come true.

The New York artist is in for a whirl of parties and sight-seeing trips during her Atlanta visit, with the Cyclorama, Stone Mountain and the High Museum of Art high on the list, and Atlanta homes meriting their share of attention. Mrs. Ross has heard glowing descriptions of the beauty of these homes from Mrs. Stein, who has been an enthusiastic adopted Atlantan ever since she moved here several years ago to be near her daughter, Mrs. Richard Schwab, and Audry Schwab, her pretty granddaughter.

WINX CLUB MAKES PLANS

When September rolls around next month and the Fall term begins at North Fulton High, the Winx Club will officially begin to function. Exciting plans are in the making for the club which is now in the throes of organization and which is for freshmen only. Under the capable leadership of Gretchen Knight, the girls are making plans for parties and informal get-togethers as a part of those very necessary extra-curricular activities.

A certain number of new members will be invited to join the club annually and there will be an election of officers. The 10 charter members include Gretchen, Helen Blackman, Joyce Atkins, Betty Ann Chestnut, Miriam Elyee, Lucy Filber, Barbara Mitchell, Patricia Kent, Carroll Cherry and Ninette Wall.

SQUARE DANCE FESTIVAL

Square dances, horseback riding, the mountain breezes, and the Harry Playford's attractive home, "Skybrook Farms," are more than enough to lure Mr. ad Mrs. William M. Robertson and their son, John, to Hendersonville, N. C., for a visit with the Playfords.

But to add variety to their visit to this resort, there will be a square dance festival and "Skybrook Farms" will have a dance team entered in the colorful contest, which will assemble all of the neighboring farmers and townspeople.

Mrs. Robertson spent several weeks at the beginning of the Summer season at Hendersonville, only returning to welcome her son, Bill, who recently received his discharge from the U. S. Navy. Bill is now attending a flying school in St. Petersburg, Fla., before entering the Georgia School of Technology in the Fall term.

Kill flies and mosquitoes quickly, safely this way

By Dr. Amos E. Badertscher, Nationally Known Entomologist

To rid your home quickly of flies and mosquitoes, buy a pint or quart of Bee Brand Insect Spray (same famous proved formula, now made better by adding 1% DDT). Close the doors and windows. Then, with a good hand spray gun, fill the room with a fog of Bee Brand Insect Spray. Leave the room closed for 15 minutes. As the insects fly through the fog, they will be affected immediately. Those that are only paralyzed, will die later because of the DDT.

Bee Brand Insect Powder, spread in cracks, crevices and corners will kill ants, roaches, bedbugs and silverfish. Not harmful to pets or children. Directions for safe use on every container.

California's Edith Small has definite ideas about suits. Ladylike colors and feminine lines are her signature touch. Pictured are two of her newest suits. Left, a pearl gray gabardine is cut with a deep rectangular neckline, and rippling tunic back. The sleeves, with deep armholes, are cut with a portion of the bodice that fits in at the waist. This unusual jacket tops a slim skirt with slight hem slash. Right, brown and white-striped wool is used for this suit that is cut wtih sweetheart neckline, fitted midriff and asymmetric trim in brown on the jacket front. In both suits the shoulders are squared, the skirts slim. These suits are available locally at around $160 retail.

Cook's Notebook

By SALLY SAVER.

IVORY PARFAIT

1¾ cups evaporated milk
1 teaspoon gelatine
1 tablespoon cold water
1 cup light corn syrup
2 eggs, beaten light and fluffy
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Pour milk into refrigerator tray and chill icy cold. Soak gelatine in water five minutes. Boil syrup to soft ball stage or 238 degrees F. Pour slowly over well-beaten eggs, beating constantly. Add gelatine and beat until cool, then add vanilla. Whip chilled milk very stiff and fold into egg mixture. Pile into refrigerator trays and freeze without stirring until it holds its shape. Serve with frozen or fresh fruit if desired. Yield: 3 pints.

LEMON MERINGUE PUDDING

½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
⅓ cup water
1⅔ cups evaporated milk (1 tall can)
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons shortening
¼ teaspoon salt
3 eggs, separated
Juice and grated rind of one large lemon
3 tablespoons sugar

Prepare crumbs by grinding dry bread in food chopper or by crushing with rolling pin until very fine. Combine milk and water and soak crumbs in liquid about ½ hour. Cream shortening with ½ cup sugar until fluffy. Add salt then beat in egg yolks one at a time. Add lemon juice and rind, then the soaked crumbs and liquid. Place in greased baking dish and bake at 350 degrees F. until custard is set, about 45 minutes. Remove from oven, cool slightly. Beat whites of eggs, add 3 tablespoons sugar gradually, and continue beating until meringue will stand in peaks. Spread over pudding and bake at 325 degrees F. until delicately browned, about 15 minutes. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

MIDDLE AMERICAN LUNCHEON EGGS

3 tablespoons fat
1 clove garlic
1 cup chopped onions
1-2 cup rice, washed and drained
2 1-4 cups canned tomatoes (1 No. 2 can)
2 bouillon cubes
1 cup hot water
1 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
6 eggs
1 1-4 cups hot Cheese Sauce

Melt fat in large frying pan. Add garlic and fry until lightly browned; discard garlic. Add onions and fry until browned. Add rice, and stir constantly until rice browns. Add tomatoes, bouillon cubes, water, salt and pepper. Mix thoroughly. Cover and cook over low heat about 30 minutes, or until rice is tender and all liquid absorbed, stirring occasionally. Arrange rice in individual baking dishes. Break an egg in each one. Cover each egg with Cheese Sauce. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 15 minutes, or until eggs are firm. Makes 6 servings.

Cheese Sauce

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1 1-4 cups milk
1-2 cup grated American cheese
1-4 cup sliced stuffed olives

Melt butter, add flour and stir until smooth. Stir in milk slowly. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce is smooth and thickened. Add cheese and stir until melted. Fold in olives. Makes about 1 1-4 cups sauce.

ELIZABETH WOODWARD SAYS:

Family's Frankness Hard On Romantic Illusions

Your tribe talks everything over at home. The dinner table is a free-for-all discussion of the family's business, their trials and tribulations, their loves and their squabbles. Everybody gives his or her opinion, and everybody is brutally frank. Most of this is helpful. But it's mighty tough on a girl's romantic illusions.

FOR BETTER PERSPECTIVE

You snare a new lad and he asks for a date. He stops by for you at the house, meets your tribe, runs the gauntlet of their piercing and inquisitive eyes . . . and ducks out with you. You think he's pretty wonderful. You have a wonderful date. But the next day!

The family starts in on that poor guy. One member of the flock is unimpressed by the big words he uses . . . and say so in a way that makes the lad seem terribly affected and prissy-pure. Somebody else noticed that the crease wasn't exactly so in his trousers. Somebody else thought his handshake a little wishy-washy. Everybody had something to say about him. And it wasn't good.

They don't know what an intelligent, interesting guy he is. They've only seen him once. Of course, you've had few enough dates with him yourself . . . but at least he talked to you . . . and he danced with you . . . he was impressed by you. You've been so busy finding out the big important things about him . . . that you didn't pay any attention to the little things.

And, of course, those are the things your family picked up right away. He doesn't matter in their lives. They aren't dating him. But they don't want you to be dazzled either. So they rip off your rose-colored glasses for you. They shred the glamor into slivers. They make him out to be a lad of faults. They don't notice his virtues.

It makes you boil. Gosh, frankness on the part of the family is okay . . . to a point. But when they laugh or sneer or look down their long noses at all he boys you fall for . . . it's mighty hard on a girl's constitution.

THE SECRET WILL OUT

You can keep on playing this dissecting table game in your family. You can throw in your amused criticism of your sister's beau or your brother's new girl throb . . . but don't expect them not to poke the finger at your friends in return.

If you don't want them to rip your friends apart . . . don't let them catch you making cracks, no matter how good-naturedly, about any of their friends. Perhaps then they'll catch on that you think this game has gone far enough.

These oh-so-rank opinions are secrets in your family, of course. But they might play the game with an audience listening sometime. Nobody's reputation is safe in their hands, it seems . . . and though it's only for family consumption . . . it might get out and ruin the fun. No, picking the bone clean is only for hungry people who haven't anything else to eat!

Loretta Young, Off Sick List, Gets Back to Busy Schedule

By DOROTHY MANNERS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 6—(INS)—Loretta Young moves straight from "Katie for Congress" on the RKO lot to "Magic Town," in which she'll co-star with Jimmy Stewart. She is completely recovered from her illness and doesn't want a vacation between movies. She reports for the picture with Jimmy Sept. 1, with Robert Riskin producing and William Wellman directing.

In this yarn Jimmy plays the head of a national poll service who gets lazy on the job and starts compiling all "national" opinions from the populace of a small town whose citizens have a gift for going against the popular trend. Sort of harks back to the Hoover-Roosevelt election of years ago when a magazine "polled" the nation and predicted that Hoover would carry all but two states. The magazine has been resting in peace ever since.

Twenty years ago George Jessel made a picture at Warners called "Private Izzy Murphy," which was produced by Darryl Zanuck and directed by Lloyd Bacon. Now, 20 years later, the trio is together again but on the 20th Century-Fox lot. Georgie's producing "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now" for Zanuck with Bacon directing. The other day Bacon walked in with an original story titled "Mine On Sunday" which George liked so much he whiped up the screen play in nothing flat and got Zanuck's "go" sign on it to follow the "Kiss" picture.

Met Kenny Delmar (Senator Claghorn) and his wife at Harriet Parsons' party at the Cabana Club and Delmar is as charming and subdued as Claghorn is loud and brassy. Rudy Vallee wasn't in Hariet's party—but he attracted a lot of attention with his new very, very blonde hair.

Somebody's been writing on my typewriter again—and it's Louella O. Parsons. She writes: "I talked with Clark Cable over the phone. I said, "I hear you are buying Greta Garbo's house in New York." "What?" he laughed, "another house! Heavens, no! I have enough trouble running my ranch." Then he told me he had seen "Men In White" re-run at the studio and he was surprised how much shorter it was than the pictures being made now. "As for 'The Hucksters,'" said Clark, "if MGM can make a good story out of it, I'll do it. In fact, MGM and I are just about to forget our differences."

McMinn May Ask Special Legislature

ATHENS, Tenn., Aug. 6—(AP)—Ex-GI victors in the battle to give McMinn County a political housecleaning said Tuesday they might ask Gov. Jim McCord for a special session of the Legislature to enact local laws which would conform "our horse and buggy government to the atomic age."

At the same time, veterans' groups, inclding Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion, made tentative plans for a "Town Hall" meeting of citizens Wednesday night in the McMinn County High School.

Harry C. Johnson, Jr., youthful former Air Forces pilot, said the mass meeting—still not definite—was designed to take advantage of popular interest in governmental reforms generated by the successful ex-GI "purge" of the local Democratic organization in last Thursday's bullet-punctuated general election.

"We want to get decisive backing in this meeting for a complete change in our city and county forms of government," Johnson said.

"What we want to do is to institute city and couny manager forms of government as quickly as possible."

One plan was to go directly to the Governor with an appeal for a special Legislative session in the hope that popular interest in the McMinn County GI revolt would create enough Legislative support for a change to manager systems.

Admittedly lacking experienced legal advice, the GIs were attempting to get outside counsel on how to set up manager forms of government. The City of Athens currently is governed by a mayor and councilmen while the Quarterly Court is the highest Legislative body in the county.

Bangkok Bombing Injures Royalist Editor

BANGKOK, Aug. 6—(AP)—A grenade thrown into a political rally Monday severely injured Tagnai Suvannadhat, pro-royalist editor recently returned from political exile, and killed a bystander. One of the journalist's legs was blown off by the blast, which caused less serious injuries to eight others, including Mukrit Pramoj, a Member of Parliament.

Police said a young man arrested at the scene confessed throwing the grenade because of personal hate for Suvannadhat.

AND THERE STOOD COUNCILMAN NIX, RIGHT WHERE HE DID NOT KNOW WAS

East Point's Councilman H. W. Nix, of the Second Ward, is embarrassed.

At Monday night's meeting of the Council he replaced Finance Committee Chairman J. R. McWilliams and part of his task was to read insurance renewals on city property for the Council's approval.

Nix came to the listing of one piece of property that puzzled him. He told the Council as much and wanted to know if anybody could tell him what and where was 101 East East Point St.

The Council chuckled.

Then one member spoke up and informed Nix the property was the City Hall where at that moment the Council was meeting and he was reading insurance renewals.

Bolt-Struck Ship Is Still Burning; 3 Men Missing

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 6 (AP)—Flames still seared the 10,000-ton, fire-gutted and explosion-wrecked Tanker Homestead late Tuesday and three missing men were about given up for lost.

Ship officers expressed belief that the fire, set by a stroke of lightning Monday and followed by a series of explosions, had taken the lives of two crewmen and a dock watchman.

The hulk of the gasoline-loaded tanker still was too dangerous to permit a search for the bodies.

Most of the tanker's crew of 49 leaped into the water when the lightning struck and were picked up. Thirty-four weer treated for burns and cuts.

The missing men were listed as Jack Bowman, Georgia seaman; Charles E. Duckworth, Jacksonville, who reported to the ship when it docked Monday for unloading, and Watchman W. O. Williamson, 68, Jacksonville.

City fire companies and fire boats still kept streams of water playing on the burning ship, docked dangerously close to a number of big gasoline drums in the Standard Oil Company's terminal. A favorable wind and a brief rainfall aided firemen in their battle to prevent spread of the blaze to shore installations.

Meanwhile, the Coast Guard opened a preliminary investigation of the disaster.

A full investigation is scheduled later.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—(AP)—The stock market averages continued to decline today on relatively light selling, although scattered favorites ignored the trend and established fairly good advances.

Further trimming of accounts again was attributed by brokers to the feeling that the list had achieved a substantial technical correction of the recent downswing and would have to find new reasons for resuming the climb. Doubts regarding industrial production persisted as bearish factors. Pleasing dividends, earnings and special situations attracted timid bidding.

Prices softened for steels and motors after a slightly uneven start. Dealings expanded for a while, then slowed as initial losses running to 2 or more points were reduced in most cases. Casualties predominated at the close. Transfers of 730,000 shares compared with 700,000 Monday.

Rail issues lost their balance after an early try at stability in the bond market today. There were few signs of serious selling pressure, but buying interest was at low ebb. Losses ranged to more than a point as the session neared the close.

Higher in the curb were American Gas, United Gas and Lake Shore. Minus signs were posted for Cuban Atlantic Sugar, Electric Bond & Share and South Penn Oil. Turnover nere was 200,000 shares versus 240,000 yesterday.

Indochina Group Favors French Plan

DALAT, Indochina, Aug. 6—(AP)—Representative of Cochin-China, Laos and Cambodia pledged their support to the French-proposed Indochinese federation at the first meeting of a political and constitutional commission considering the proposal.

The delegates agreed the federation should not encroach on national sovereignties of member states. Dalat was chosen as the capital of the proposed federation.

All delegates announced their adherence to the French union. The self-declared but unrecognized republic of Viet Nam—comprising Tonkin and North Annam—is not represented at the conference. The French explained that Viet Nam had discussed its relations to other Indochinese states here last May.

Man Beaten, Police Force Is Suspended

PELL CITY, Ala., Aug. 6—(AP)—Pell City's three-man police force was suspended Tuesday after a crowd estimated by Mayor W. T. Starnes at between 150 and 200 appeared at the City Hall Monday night and demanded its removal on charges the officers had beaten a prisoner.

Mayor Starnes said the crowd elected a four-member committee to discuss with the City Council the removal of the officers and suspension of Police Chief Luke Jinwright and his two assistants was voted by the Council after an hour's conference. Pell City is about 30 miles east of Birmingham.

The Mayor said he did not know what further steps would be taken in the controversy but assumed the Council would call a special meeting to select new police officers.

Members of the Committee were identified as Horace Wright, Dee West, Frank Simpkins and Leon Rich. The Mayor said the crowd was liberally sprinkled with returned servicemen.

Starnes quoted Wright, a mill employe, as saying "we are now requesting that all members be suspended, and if this is not done immediately, we are going to demand action."

A compromise calling for suspension of Officers Ingram Richie and Pal Rich and retention of Chief Jinwright was rejected by the Committee and the Council then voted to suspend all three.

The Committee charged that a white man arrested last Friday was beaten on the head. Released on bond the following day, he was treated at the Pell City Hospital.

Chief Jinwright charged that the man used abusive language when officers answered a call at his home and resisted arrest. He added that one of the officers "hit him twice with the back of his hand."

Says Hapeville Holds Big Share In Bond Issue

Passage of the bond issue will mean much for Atlanta's suburban communities.

Such was the sentiment voiced last night by Courtland Gilbert, Secretary of the Fulton County Planning Board, at the quarterly meeting of the Hapeville Chamber of Commerce.

To Hapeville, for example, Gilbert pointed out the bond issue will mean a better sewerage system and increased water revenue certificates, as well as a more attractive location for industry.

"The bond issue is necessary for Hapeville to bring it to the point in industrialization which it has been trying to reach for the past 15 years," Gilbert said, adding that improvements offered by the issue would reverse the recent tide of industry away from the area.

The Chamber meeting, attended by 100 persons, was held at the Georgia Baptist Children's Home. Brown Tyler, President, presided. Musical entertainment was provided by the Baptist Home Orchestra.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—(AP)—Cotton futures turned reactionary in slow trading today. Persistent commission house liquidation, influenced by upward revision of crop ideas in the trade, along with some hedging, met indifferent mill buying. Increases of about $1.50 a bale were registered on early flurries of trade buying and some covering against exports but, thereafter, the market moved generally lower to close with losses of 75 cents to $2.30 a bale.

The first government estimate on 1946 cotton, due Thursday, August 8, was the important development awaited by traders. One private forecast placed the crop at 9,445,000 bales and another at 9,768,000 bales. The 1945 production was 9,015,000 bales.

There was some selling of spot goods in the cotton textile market following the official announcement of the higher August textile ceiling. The futures market, however, ignored pleas of Sen. Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, at the Atlanta cotton market that farmers withhold the crop until the price of 40 cents a pound is reached.

Atlanta Holds 'Convention' Center Title

Atlanta is clinching its title as "the convention city" of the South, according to the latest records of the Atlanta Convention and Visitors' Bureau, in the Rhodes-Haverty Building.

So far this year, in conventions that attract 50 or more persons, the Bureau has listed 180 such meetings. Stephen Styron, Secretary, says the list will enlarge as the hotel situation loosens up.

"We have now reached the stage where our hotels can offer some weekend accommodations for visitors," he said. "However, the general situation in reference to large conventions is still tight."

The largest convention in immediate prospect here is that of the Jewish War Veterans, set for Aug. 30 through Sept. 3. This convention will attract 2,000 visitors from all over the country.

It was in 1940 that the Convention Bureau began the practice of listing only such meetings as could draw 50 or more persons. Since that time, the number of conventions held here each year follows: 1940, 282; 1941, 445; 1942, 151; 1943, 215; 1944, 271; (1945 with a ban on conventions from February to October, 177; and 1946 (estimated), 180.

Man Suffocates In Sand Pit

While aiding in unloading a load of sand from a boxcar, Arthur Murphy, Negro, of 510 Jones Ave., N. W., fell into the sandpit. Before rescuers could get to him, the sand poured in on him and suffocated him. At the time, Murphy was working in the coal yards at 305 Foundry St., N. W.

In an effort to rescue Murphy, another Negro, Johnny Jones, of 361 Magnolia St., S. W., threw him a heavy wire cable. However, the victim was unable to lift himself against the pressure of the sand.

PRETTY WANDERER—When pretty little Miss Linden Jackson, now enjoying her second Summer, arrived at Police Station yesterday, she immediately fell in love with all the policemen. Here she is giving a great big hug to Patrolman W. E. Hickey. This photograph was made by S. E. Vernoy, of the Police Department's Identification Bureau.

Pretty Miss Roams Street Slightly Clad

A pretty young lady, attired only in her panties—the kind that fold and are fastened with pins—just has no business wandering about on Luckie street, near Spring, in the daytime.

As a result, the pretty young miss, Linden Jackson, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Jackson, of 239 Clark Howell Place, spent some time yesterday with the matron at the Juvenile Detention Home just back of the courthouse.

Miss Jackson was discovered by J. M. Cox, a Georgia Tech student, who reasoned she had no business there at that time and attired as she was, and called police, who took her to the home, where she was held until her anxious parents could locate her.

The girl, police said, had wandered several blocks from her home, and when stopped by the Tech student, was headed toward the shopping district.

Anyone See a Head To Fit This Cap

Atlanta police have a "Cinderella" case on their hands, but instead of searching for a person whose foot will fit a shoe, they're looking for a head to fit a cap.

That's all because a burglar in the home of Mrs. J. W. Wood, 206 Ormond St., S. E., ran out from under his cap when Mrs. Wood screamed, leaving the cap behind, police said.

Radio Patrolmen W. A. Jones and J. L. Pope answered Mrs. Wood's call, and they are leading the hunt for the now-capless burglar.

Decatur Trolley Route Decided Upon at Meeting

Decatur's new trackless trolley line from East College Avenue will run to Columbia Drive and Shadowmoor Drive, it was announced last night at the Decatur City Commissioners' meeting.

The line will follow Shadowmoor Drive to Hilldale Drive, then to Derrydown Way and back to Columbia Drive.

On the recommendation of DeKalb Commissioner Scott Candler the Commission ordered a building line established from Girls High School to Herring Street, in the vicinity where the County will build an office building and health center.

It was pointed out the line would be necessary to prevent the erection of buildings closer to the street than the Boys High School, so they could not interfere with the County's projects.

To Probe Hide Market

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—(AP)—Civilian Production Administrator John D. Small said Tuesday the Government is planning an investigation to determine whether hides for shoe leather are being withheld from the market.

Atlanta Airport Reaches Busiest Peak in History

By CLARK HOWELL, JR.

More Atlantans are flying today than at any time in the history of the Atlanta airport. More than 20,000 passengers board planes at the Atlanta airport every month, with approximately 120 scheduled flights leaving every day.

The Atlanta airport is bursting at the seams with activity, and at rush hours there are as many as eight or ten ships lined up at one time. According to one airport official, there are more seats on one DC-4 than there are seats in the lobby of the main administration building.

Not only are people anxious to fly on airlines, but air-minded enthusiasts are pouring in by the hundreds to charter private ships and to take flight instructions.

"Our flight hours are four to five times larger than they were last year," said C. C. Gilham, manager of the flight school of Southeastern Air Service, Inc. "Our chief difficulty is obtaining additional space for expansion."

PRIVATE FLYERS HURT

"The private flyer is suffering today," said W. F. Underwood, manager of the Atlanta branch of the Southern Airways, "because of the lack of space. If conditions continue as they are now, private planes will eventually be crowded out entirely."

A Delta Airlines official reported that the revenue from passenger miles had almost doubled during the first seven months of this year over the passenger revenue during the same period last year.

Which all adds up to the unalterable fact, that unless something is done about the crowded conditions at the Atlanta airport, somebody is going to suffer badly.

PLANS TO GROW

Jack Grey, manager of the airport, outlined the expansion program, now only in blueprint form. The increased facilities depend first on the passing of the bond issue Aug. 14, and also the securing of Federal funds to match City and County funds.

The airport expansion would cost approximately $6,000,000, exclusive of the administration building, Grey said, of which approximately $2,000,000 would be spent for grading, $700,000 for drainage and the balance for the construction of six runways, ranging in length from 5,600 to 6,000 feet.

The present runways, designed for 50,000-pound loadings, will be used as taxi strips as long as they are useful, according to Grey. The new runways will be designed for 120,000-pound loadings.

TO USE ARMY RAMP

Grey also said that it would be possible to utilize the Army ramp on the west side of the field while the construction of the new field was taking place.

The new administration building is to be of circular design, surrounded by a 1,250-foot ramp, capable of handling 19 ships simultaneously. Taxi strips radiate from the surrounding ramp, feeding into the main airstrips.

The new building will contain a post office department, restaurant facilities, barber shops, restrooms, control operation rooms, ticket office, waiting rooms, snack bars, etc.

"The expansion when completed will put us in a position comparable to the wants and needs of the Atlanta area for several years," Grey said.
